THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

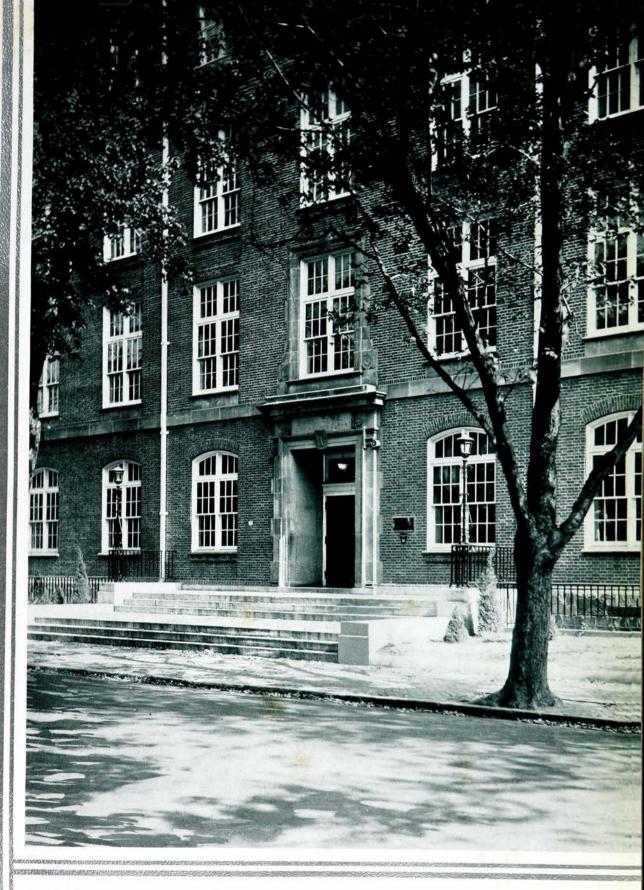

WASHINGTON, D. C.

#EE LD1947.cs

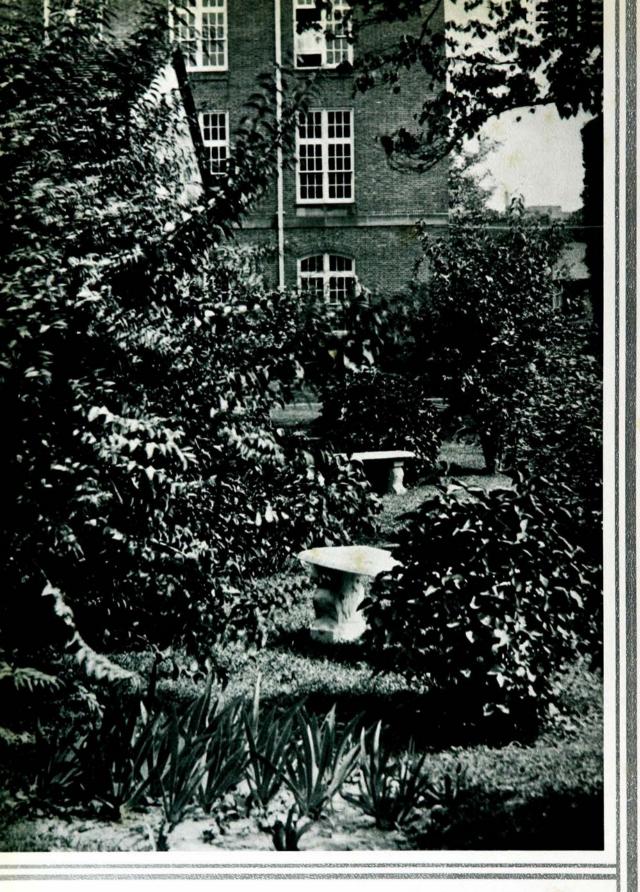

N his will, George Washington bequeathed fifty shares of stock in the Potomac Company for the endowment of a university to be established in the District of Columbia, "to which the youth of fortune and talents from all parts thereof might be sent for the completion of their education in all the branches of polite literature; in arts and sciences; in acquiring knowledge of the principles of politics and good government." In furtherance of the hope and project of the first President of the United States, this University, founded as Columbian College and now named The George Washington University, was established.

THE UNIVERSITY

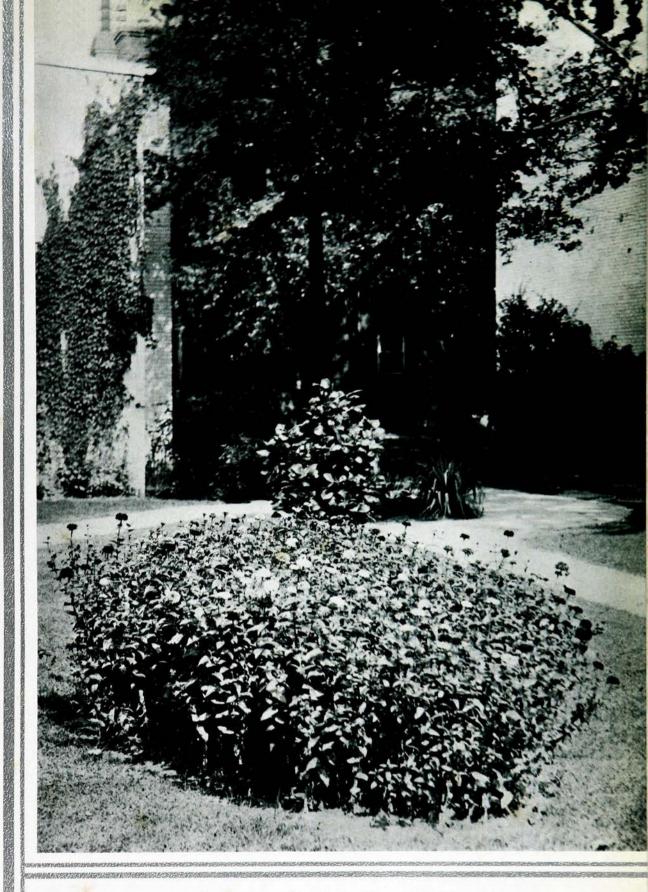

establishment of the University were taken by the Reverend Luther Rice. The institution's potentialities for the fulfillment of Washington's will attracted the interest and patronage of Federal officials. Contributions to the Endowment fund were made by John Quincy Adams, the Secretary of State, and other members of the Cabinet and of Congress. Two years later "Columbian College in the District of Columbia" was chartered by act of Congress.

Dear native regions, I foretell,
From what I feel at this farewell,
That, wheresoe'er my steps may tend,
And whensoe'er my course shall end,
If in that hour a single tie
Survive of local sympathy,
My soul will cast the backward view,
The longing look alone on you.

Thus, while the Sun sinks down to rest Far in the regions of the west,
Though to the vale no parting beam Be given, not one memorial gleam,
A lingering light he fondly throws
On the dear hills where first he rose.

—William Wordsworth.

THE School of Medicine, eleventh in the country in the order of founding, was opened in 1825. Its long record of clinical training has been outstanding and it has stood consistently at the top of the list of American medical colleges with respect to the achievement of its graduates. Its contribution to scientific medicine also is impressive, and the history of its chair of Bacteriology - held successively by Theobald Smith, Walter Reed, and Frederick Russell, the three most important figures in the evolution of the science - is matched by no other medical school in the country and probably in the world.

1836, occurred the death of the Reverend Luther Rice, the man to whom, more than any other, the College owed its founding. In the tribute paid to his memory by the Board of Trustees, it was gracefully recognized that the College was "mainly indebted for its existence to his generous and laborious efforts." Resolutions of respect for his memory were adopted and the President of the College was requested to deliver an obituary discourse in honor of his life, character and services.

Phi Pi Epsilon, Professional Foreign Service Sorority, was founded at George Washington University, February, 1931, for the purpose of creating and developing interest among the women of the University in the fields of foreign service and foreign commerce. Those eligible for membership must have completed two years in the University, and must be interested in fields related to the subject of foreign affairs. This field is the last in which women have entered, and, therefore, Phi Pi Epsilon is a pioneer. Contacts have been made with people doing both field and domestic work in foreign service. Plans are being made for national expansion in the near future.

HE name of the University was changed by act of Congress in 1904 to The George Washington University, in recognition of the fact that the institution was the fulfillment of Washington's educational ideal.

DR. DANIEL L. BORDEN President

THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

It is the earnest hope of the alumni officers that members of the Class of 1933 will maintain a close and lasting association with their Alma Mater, individually and through the alumni organizations.

The George Washington University alumni organizations are the channels which give direction and expression to that continuing interest in the University and its affairs which should be a part of the heritage of every graduate.

REGIONAL CLUBS in cities throughout the country keep alive the spirit of the University among alumni who are remote. If you are leaving Washington to take up your work elsewhere, you should make contact with the George Washington Alumni Club in the city where you locate.

PROFESSIONAL GROUPS-Law, Medicine, Educationfoster friendship, cooperation, and progress among graduates whose life work is in the same field.

THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION coordinates these various forces and promotes alumni objectives which are common to the University as a whole and to its entire alumni body.

Your graduation from the University makes you a member of the General Alumni Association. Your life work allocates you to a professional group. Your place of residence is the basis for membership in a regional club. These are three fields of alumni interest and activity in which every graduate should take a part.

The George Washington University Medical Society was organized with a membership limited to graduates of the Medical School and members of the faculty. The purpose of the society is to provide opportunities for its members to participate in discussions of problems relating to their profession, to read papers on original scientific work, and to promote unity and friendly intercourse among the graduates. Students of the Senior Class are invited to the meetings, and there is one meeting at which they are eligible to present papers. Additional interest is stimulated by frequent invitations of guest speakers prominent in their fields. At the annual banquets the guest speakers are chosen from those enjoying international recognition in their chosen fields.

Dr. Walter W. Palmer, professor of Medical Practice at Columbia University, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the society, February 18, in the main ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel this year.

An eminent physician, Dr. Palmer, who has specialized in the physiological aspects of the thyroid, discussed the interesting and important contributions to the physiology of the gland that may result in the perfection of other types of treatment for the disease instead of surgery.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Earl Baldwin McKinley, Dean of The George Washington University School of Medicine. Dr. John A. Reed, president of the society, presided. Some three hundred physicians, including many leading members of the medical profession in Washington, attended.

A program of music was given by the men's and women's glee clubs of the University, under the direction of Dr. Robert Howe Harmon.

HISTORY OF THE JUNIOR CLASS

In all their infinite wisdom and understanding the trustees of The George Washington University could not see why the University was not perfect after they had painted the buildings white, planted flowers in Martha's garden, and engaged a faculty of exceeding merit which could offer courses of amazing variety. It took a freshman to tell them that spirit and organization were lacking. The Class of 1934 even offered to fix it, and they did.

They made the school "campus conscious" by bringing new spirit and life to all organizations and activities.

This year the class organized and elected Joe Danzansky, president; Harriet Atwell, vice-president; Virginia Hawkins, secretary; and Bernard Fagelson, treasurer. They took an active part in Homecoming and the Thanksgiving Day football game by sponsoring a "welcome-home" movement and electing sponsors for the football team.

There has been nothing which this class has been unwilling to do. They have brought new life, enthusiasm, and spirit to the University.

The International Students' Society was founded in the fall of 1931, for the purpose of encouraging fellowship and friendship among the students from foreign countries through an exchange of national ideas and customs by means both social and cultural.

In order to accomplish its cultural end, the society invited several prominent men to speak at its gatherings on topics of international interest. Chief among these were Mr. Charles C. Hurrey, Secretary of the International House at New York; Mr. John T. Maktos, Assistant Legal Advisor in the State Department; and Dr. Bonnerjea, Professor of Oriental Languages at Catholic University.

Socially, one of the most outstanding events of the season was the musicale given at the Wardman Park Hotel, November 29. Here a group of brilliant artists played to 150 delighted guests. The midwinter formal dance held at the Acacia fraternity house on Friday, January 13, provided a socially successful evening in spite of the date. The international spirit of the society was further enkindled when twenty-four students from South African universities were entertained at tea, January 18, and three Japanese students on a good-will tour were guests of the society at a social and speaker meeting, February 14.

The members represent thirty-seven countries of the world.

THE COLONIAL CAMPUS CLUB

OFFICERS

Founded in the spring of 1931, with the purpose of bringing together unaffiliated women in the University to develop interest in campus activities and to form a point of social contact, the Colonial Campus Club is striving to fill a need of university life.

During the past two years the club has been in an embryonic stage and is just beginning to emerge with success.

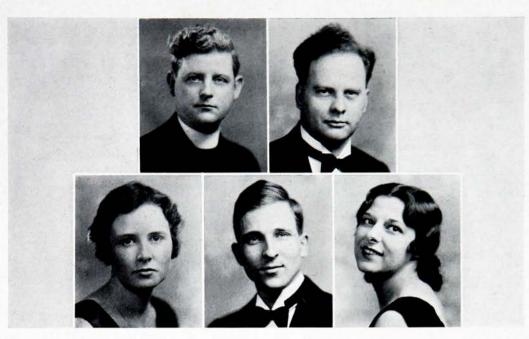

Participation in the All-University carnival, a definite show of interest in class elections, and the sponsoring of a campaign for the rehabilitation of Lambie House have been a few of the University activities the Colonial Campus Club has taken part in.

To fulfill its social aims, the group has given card parties, splash parties, luncheons and suppers, and these have been mediums through which the members have formed happy friendships in associating with one another.

The club is planning an intensive program in an endeavor to make the group an integral part of university life.

The Newman Club is an organization of Catholic students of the George Washington University. It was founded in the spring of 1925 as an authorized center for the religious, intellectual, and social life of members of the Catholic faith attending the University. From a nucleus of nine members the club has become one of the most active organizations at George Washington, having an active membership of over one hundred and fifty students. One of the chief aims of the Newman Club is complete cooperation with the school authorities in advancing the welfare and standards of the University. Each year an elaborote social program of dances, luncheons, card parties, etc., culminating in the Newman Prom, is sponsored by the club. The meetings of the club are addressed by some of the most outstanding speakers of Washington. The Newman Club is an accredited member of the National Federation of College Catholic Clubs. Club publications are the monthly magazine, The Cardinal, and the annual satirical sheet, The New-Maniac.

Dorothy Craig, a member of the George Washington University Newman Club, is National Recording Secretary of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs.

This very useful publication, in a new handy size, was distributed without charge during the registration period to all students.

The material was presented in four sections. The first, entitled "General Information," gave important dates for freshmen, as well as salient facts regarding the University, its history and its environs. The second part, headed "Student Activities," listed the leading activities of the University, their officers, and a short explanatory note giving the scope and work of each activity. Sports, in section three, included varsity, interfraternity and intramurals; also, game schedules, awards and requirements. The last part was devoted to organizations, beginning with the social fraternities. The honorary and professional fraternities were also listed in alphabetical order, including the addresses and phone numbers of their officers. The clubs were presented in the same manner, with a short paragraph after each, explaining its purpose.

TROUBADOURS

The Tech High School lights dimmed. . . . The conversation subsided. . . . The last strains of Beattie's overture faded into the corners of the balcony. . . . There was a brief hush of expectancy. . . . Up went the curtain and the show was on! . . . "Oh, Say! Can't You See?"

Charm and spicy variety were glowing characteristics of the Troubadours' 1932 production. Charm's name in this instance was Ruth Molyneaux, the lovely, golden leading lady. Leonard Stevens, looking very handsome in his chauffeur's uniform, gave a pleasing and suspiciously lifelike performance as the male lead.

Vivaciousness itself was Audrey Edmonds who, with George Wells, furnished the secondary heart interest. Abundant mirth was supplied by the comedy team of Sickler and Danzansky; while the vocal honors were divided between Craig Morris, tenor, and the University's own Boswell Sisters—Grace Giffen, Margaret Gilligan, and Annabelle McCullough.

Others who performed minor roles effectively included Jane Rhoades, Edith Brookhart, Midge Montgomery, Bill Claudy, and Milton Goodman. Dean Longfellow and his stage assistants produced pleasing stage settings.

We can easily forget the weakness of the time-worn musical comedy plot and remember instead our enjoyment of the song creations of Daniel C. Beattie. Dan, who wrote the libretto, the music and the lyrics, also served as managing director and was professionally assisted by Denis E. Connell.

The theme song of the show, "Oh, Say! Can't You See?", was gay and rhythmical. Not content with producing one hit, Dan presented two sentimental ballads, "This Is Goodbye" and "Oh, My Darling, I Love You," both of which were excellent.

The three choruses were excellently trained and led by Christine Spignul, and Ruth Warren as costume director produced the most elaborate set of costumes ever before presented.

The final chorus. . . . The heroine bowed. . . . The lights came on. . . . We came out humming . . . "Oh, Say! Did You See?"

CUE AND CURTAIN

"Cook Robin," by Elmer Rice and Philip Barry, sponsored by the Columbian Women and presented by the Cue and Curtain Club at Wardmen Park on November 19 and 20, caused the George Washington dramatic critics to at last admit the true worth of this campus Drama Club.

The whole cast was uniformly excellent, thus making it difficult to pick out the stars in the performance.

A true artist, Sol Orleans, played the hard-boiled director, and Grant VanDemark gave a really professional delivery of the character of Julian Cleveland. Jack Richmond made an attractive hero, and Richard Lane and Royal Gunnison tried for honors in the part of Hancock Robinson.

Elizabeth Rice brought down the house with her between-acts speech and merits high praise for her splendid performance throughout the play. Amanda Chittum was thoroughly charming in the ingenue lead, and Tom Taylor executed the amusing character of the near-sighted Clark Torrance in an excellent manner.

Newell Lusby, besides constructing the artistic sets, played the part of Doctor Edgar Grace. Maxine Kahn as the assistant stage director amused every one with her "Camera eyes that 'Kodak' as she goes." Margaret Gilligan, Kenn Rommey, and Don Wilkins gave weak parts strength by steady delineation.

Between acts the delightful custom of serving coffee and cigarettes was inaugurated. During this time due credit was given Constance Connor Brown by every one for the fine directing which was evident throughout the performance.

MEN'S DEBATE

This year the men's debate team met Trinity College of Dublin, Ireland, in an international debate held at George Washington University. The question debated by Arthur Murphy and Seymour Mintz of George Washington and Garrett Hill and James Auchnutty of Dublin was, "Resolved, That capitalism has broken down."

The men's intercollegiate debate squad debated on both sides of the question, "Resolved, That the United States should adopt the British system of radio control."

The members of the squad debating this question are: Dewitt Bennett, Harold Candland, Philip Merryman, Seymour Mintz, Arthur Murphy, Alden Towberman, and Wilburn West.

Teams from Washington and Lee, University of North Carolina, Duke, Princeton, and Boston University were met during the year.

WOMEN'S DEBATE

The women's debate team has this year debated both sides of the question, "Resolved, That the United States should agree to the cancellation of interallied war debts."

The squad is composed of Clara Critchfield, Sylvia Edlavitch, Charlotte Dubin, Jane Ficklin, Marjorie Nelson, Elizabeth Rice, Helen Sherfey, and Esther Talley.

During the course of the season the team met representatives from Swarthmore, Hood, Pittsburgh, Trinity, and Boston University.

INTRA-MURAL DEBATE

Each year Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary forensic fraternity, offers silver loving cups to the winning fraternity and the winning sorority in an intramural debate contest. If the same organization wins the cup for three successive years, it remains in their possession permanently.

In the spring of the year 1932 Theta Upsilon Omega was the victorious fraternity, having defeated Acacia in the finals of the contest. The question debated was, "Resolved, That the crime of kidnapping should be punishable by death." Members of the winning team were James Hobbs and Harry Clayton.

The sororities debated the question, "Resolved, That married women in government positions whose husbands are gainfully employed should be replaced by qualified persons now unemployed." Jean Kardell and Olivia Watkins won the cup for Zeta Tau Alpha by defeating the Phi Sigma Sigma team in the finals.

DAVIS PRIZES

In 1847 the Hon. Isaac Davis founded the Davis Prizes, which are gold awards made each year to the seniors who have made the greatest progress in public speaking since their connection with the University.

The award of these prizes is determined by a contest in which participants deliver original orations which are judged by a committee selected by the Department of Public Speaking.

In the 1932 contest the winners were: Francis Kirkman, first; Bertha Kauffman, second; and Hilda Haves, third.

The contest in 1933 was won by Richard Tilden, first; Elizabeth Reeves, second; and Seymour Mintz, third.

FRESHMAN ORATORICAL CONTEST

The Freshman Oratorical Contest, inaugurated by Phi Delta Gamma, national professional fraternity, has since 1931 been sponsored by Sigma Delta Phi, national speech arts fraternity for women. Two prizes are offered and the contest is open to all freshman students. Original orations are delivered, and a committee selected by the fraternity and approved by the Department of Public Speaking acts as judges.

In the 1932-33 contest the winners were: First, Marjorie Nelson; and, second, Alicia Mooney.

WENDELL H. BAIN

HOMECOMING BALL

As a climax to the post-game dances came one of the highlights of George Washington's social season, the Homecoming Ball, on Thanksgiving night, after the University of Oklahoma game.

The main ballroom of the Mayflower was a perfect setting for a dance which could rightfully be called an All-University one. The boxes surrounding the dance floor were occupied by the social organizations on the campus, whose banners added to the color of the scene.

The music, furnished by Johnny Slaughter and directed by Emory Daugherty, featured college songs as well as the popular melodies of the day, and was all that could be asked.

The countless numbers made it impossible to say who was there, but we can say that there were but few in the entire school who did not attend this dance—students, faculty, and alumni were all well represented.

Credit for the success of this ball is due Wendell Bain, who served on the ball committee of the All-University Carnival Committee.

INTERFRATERNITY PLEDGE PROM

Pledges to the right and pledges to the left! It was their night, and a memorable one, too. Active members and old brothers alike, representing their Greek lodges, felt indebted to their young neophytes for a very enjoyable evening, Friday, December 9, spent at the Shoreham Hotel.

The changing lights and the different tempos furnished by the Shoreham orchestra seemed to fit in with the mood of the revelers, which was gay indeed.

Betsy Garrett, escorted by George Hawse, Social Chairman of the Interfraternity Pledge Council, and Sarah Catherine Cooke with William Franklin, President of the Council, led the dancers around the softly lighted ballroom in the grand march.

Not until the last strains of music had died away did the dancers regretfully leave the ballroom.

RAY HEIMBURGER

GRACE GIFFEN

ENGINEER'S BALL

The Engineers, with their lovely ladies, celebrated their second annual ball at the Kennedy-Warren, Friday, January 13. The popular Herb Gordon and his orchestra played for the event.

When the clock struck midnight, Ray Heimburger, accompanied by Grace Giffen, and Betty Coon and Floyd Travers, led a large and colorful throng into the grand march of the evening.

After circling around the floor the dancers retired, and the Men's Glee Club of the University sang several old favorites. Then Marjorie Mitchell and "Sock" Kennedy, the peppy pair every one enjoyed so much in "Oh, Say! Can't You See?", tapped their way to much applause. Sue Crump, accompaneid by Margaret Gilligan, sang several hot blues songs.

Again the sweet melody of Herb's orchestra whispered through the ballroom, and the merriment of the evening continued until the wee hours of the morning.

RUTH WARREN

WENDELL BAIN

THE INTERFRATERNITY PROM

The Willard ballroom was the scene of the 1933 Interfraternity Prom on February 1, with Jacques Renard's famous Camel Hour Orchestra rendering the sweet and dreamy music.

Dancing began at ten o'clock and continued until two. At midnight came the grand march, which was led by Ruth Warren and Ruth Critchfield, escorted by Wendell Bain and William Hanback. While the intricate figures of the march were being executed the ladies received their favors—pastel-tinted chiffon handkerchiefs.

The Gate and Key Pledging Ceremony, the presentation of the scholarship and athletic awards, and the sale of the "Razzberry" followed. Then came the specialty entertainment numbers, featuring "Toots" Mondello, who gave an imitation of Ted Lewis; Jacques Renard in a violin selection; and Ronald Groome, who sang a popular waltz number.

The committee for the prom consisted of Wendell H. Bain, chairman; Grant Van Demark and Gerald Free.

PAN-HELLENIC PROM

All things combined—the time, Friday night, April 28; the place, the beautiful modernistic Shoreham ballroom with the varied colored lights to lend gayety to the occasion; and the people, the greater part of the Greek letter affiliate, made the 1933 Pan-Hellenic prom one of the most successful in recent years.

Excellent music was provided by Eddie Poole and his orchestra and was all that could be desired for dancing. Many different shades of evening gowns made their appearance and needless to say all looked especially well on the ladies. In spite of the depression, some were sufficiently lucky to wear lovely corsages of gardenias and spring flowers.

During intermission the Petticoat was sold by members of Gamma Eta Zeta, women's honorary journalistic fraternity. The stillness was broken by frequent laughter and surprised and embarrassed expressions, which well showed every one's appreciation of the latest issue of this scandal sheet, except probably those who were really put on the spot.

The banners of each sorority designated the respective box of each of the eleven members of the Pan-Hellenic Association. Not only active members, but many alumni were seen amid the dancing throng.

The committee, consisting of Harriet Atwell, chairman, Mary Louise Yauch and Betsy Garrett, is to be congratulated on this successful dance.

YAUCH, GARRETT, ATWELL

STUDENT COUNCIL MIXER

Aiming to secure the best of friendships between the freshmen and our older standbys, the Student Council started off the year with the usual mixer on September 21.

After a concert by the George Washington band, under the direction of Louis Malkus, Corcoran Hall and Stockton Hall opened their doors to the throngs of dancers. During intermission several short skits taken from last year's Troubadour show were presented, and then dancing continued for the remainder of the evening. It's nice to renew old acquaintances and make new friends.

INTERFRATERNITY AND STUDENT COUNCIL DANCES

The dollar dance at the Press Club went over with a bang. It was the first dance of the year, people were still enthusiastic over the Alabama game, and the Commanders orchestra furnished some very good music. The Interfraternity and Student Councils had as their guests the members of the George Washington and Alabama football teams.

After the Catawba game a peppy, victorious bunch met in Corcoran Hall to celebrate. Our victory over Iowa called for a big time, so the crowds poured into the Willard ballroom to dance to the strains of Daugherty and his band.

Twice more Corcoran Hall was the scene of after-game dollar dances. Both were great successes—there's no place like home!

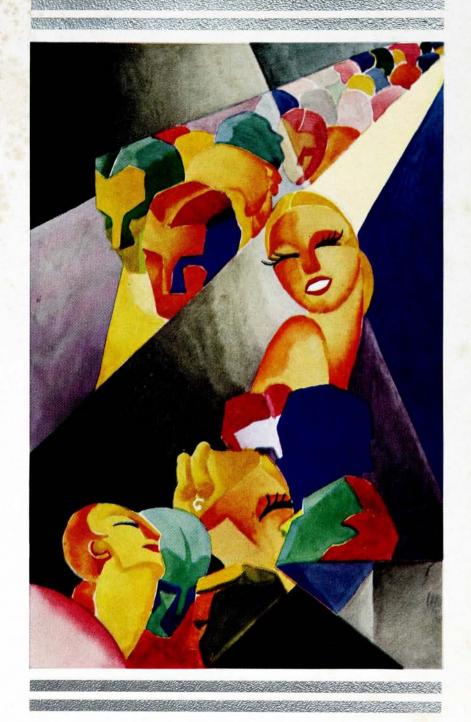

PAN-HELLENIC LUNCHEON

The feature of the second annual Pan-Hellenic luncheon at the Mayflower on February 4 was a talk on "Citizenship" by Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, who was introduced by Mrs. Wilson Compton, president of the Washington Pan-Hellenic Association.

The presidents of the Pan-Hellenic Associations of George Washington University and the University of Maryland were hostesses at the table reserved for the active members of the fraternities of the two schools, while fifty prominent fraternity women acted as hostesses at the rest of the tables, which were beautifully decorated with spring flowers.

The popular Troubadour Trio, consisting of Annabelle McCullough, Grace Giffen, and Margaret Gilligan, accompanied by Dan Beattie, sang several numbers from this year's Troubadour show.

N October 30, 1919, at a special convocation in Memorial Continental Hall, the University conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon His Majesty, Albert, King of the Belgians, the first honorary degree ever conferred upon a ruling prince in the National Capital. The ceremonies were attended by the Vice-President of the United States, members of the diplomatic corps, the cabinet, and congress. Following the conferring of the degree the King said: "I esteem the receipt of this degree a very great honor, not only on account of its own significance but also on account of the close association between the name of this university and that of the first President of the United States."

The Winter Convocation on February 22, 1929, President Calvin Coolidge delivered the address, which was his last public utterance prior to leaving the White House. The University conferred honorary degrees upon President Coolidge and upon Mrs. Coolidge at this time. It was the first time in history that a President and his wife had been honored in this way upon the same occasion.

MARCH OF EVENTS

April 25—Campus women began primping up today in preparation for a contest to be sponsored by Gate and Key, honorary activities fraternity, in connection with the All-University Carnival, May 6, 7, to determine the most popular girl in the University. Proceeds will go to the support of the University Band.

May 5—A typical carnival midway began to take shape on the campus today as laborers and carpenters began erection of booths, a lighted colonnade, a huge outdoor stage and most curious of all, a towering ferris wheel.

May 7—More than 2,000 thronged the midway of the University Carnival last night despite threatening weather that finally caused sorority and fraternity concessions to continue business in Corcoran Hall. With better weather predicted and the highlight of the program, the coronation of the Queen, scheduled for tonight, a large crowd is expected.

May 7—A real Mahatama, a native of India and the son of a long line of fortune tellers, was one of the most popular of a number of curiosities on the Carnival midway last night. Kappa Kappa Gamma sponsored his appearance.

May 8—A profit of $1,500 was earned by the Carnival, according to a statement submitted today to the Bursar's office by the Student Council committee composed of Theodore Rinehart, Arthur Kriemelmeyer, and Elizabeth Rees. Receipts from the popularity contest amounted to $793.74 and from the Carnival $1,225.01. Expenses were approximately $500.

May 8—Ruth Molyneaux was last night crowned Queen of the Carnival following her spectacular victory Wednesday in the final five hours of the Gate and Key contest to determine the most popular girl on the campus. July 14—A steadily rising thermometer doesn't bother Eugen Weisz's class in sketching since they have taken their easels to Rock Creek Park to take advantage of the remarkable beauties of nature offered there. The student artists declare that the arrangement is even more satisfactory than classroom work.

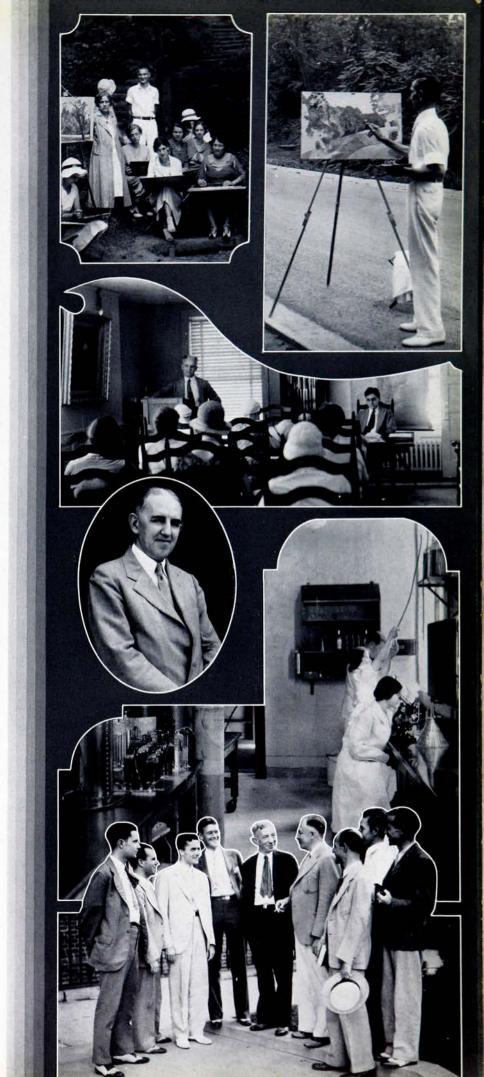

July 16—Fine arts students will continue doing their class work at Rock Creek Park during next week. The field work offers the double advantage of being a relief from the hot classrooms and furnishes excellent subject material.

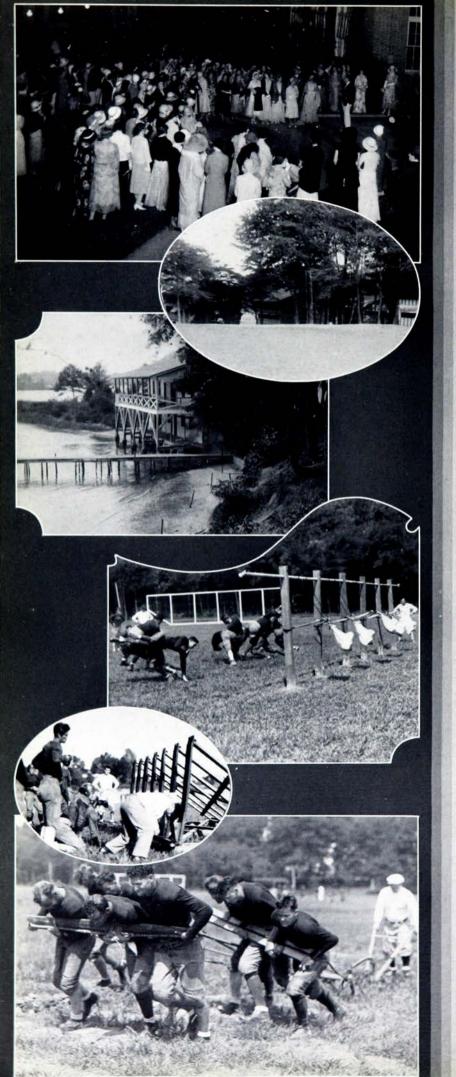

July 19—Dr. William Manning of the State Department addressed the Hispanic-American Seminar today and will speak again tomorrow in two of a series of lectures given by some of the outstanding authorities in the country on the political, social and economic problems of our southern neighbors.

> July 21—Among the many outstanding features of the Summer Sessions program this year are the courses offered in "Far Eastern Affairs" and "Comparative European Governments" given by Dr. Frederic A. Ogg, internationally known political science authority and text book writer.

July 29—Dr. Everett C. Albritton, M.D., formerly of the University of Illinois, has recently taken up his studies in the new Medical School laboratories, and will begin a series of important research studies to be undertaken by the School. The yard was attractively decorated with Japanese lanterns. Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin delivered a short message of greeting.

Sept. 3—The University football squad, consisting of forty-five varsity candidates and twenty freshmen, left today for Camp Letts, where their two weeks of conditioning will begin immediately, in preparation for the toughest schedule a District team has ever faced.

Camp Letts, Sept. 5—Improvements totaling $1,500 have been effected at the Colonials' football camp during the summer and a freshly graded athletic field and several new cottages, as well as a number of minor improvements, awaited the gridders when they arrived here Saturday. The first practice session was held today.

Camp Letts, Sept. 9 — Coach James E. Pixlee sent the Colonial squad through the most strenuous work-out of the week today, concentrating almost entirely upon blocking and charging. The men appeared to be getting into shape rapidly.

Camp Letts, Sept. 10—Coach James E. Pixlee has devised several new pieces of apparatus which he believes will be great aids in getting his men in shape for the coming campaign. The devices are new types of charging machines and are said to be superior to other similar devices now in general use.

Camp Letts, Sept. 12 — The Colonial grid squad is allowing no grass to grow under its feet these days. Sport scribes were surprised this morning to see "Possum Jim" behind a plow and a few of the promising halfbacks substituting for the horses.

Sept. 22—One of the most promising football squads Washington has ever known—the Colonial varsity under the guidance of Jim Pixlee—completed final preparations today for their opening game Saturday with Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va. The game should give the test of strength that football fans have been awaiting.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 24 — The George Washington University special train of five cars, bringing 120 spectators and a fortypiece band to the W. and L. game, arrived here this morning shortly before noon. The weather was ideal for the game this afternoon.

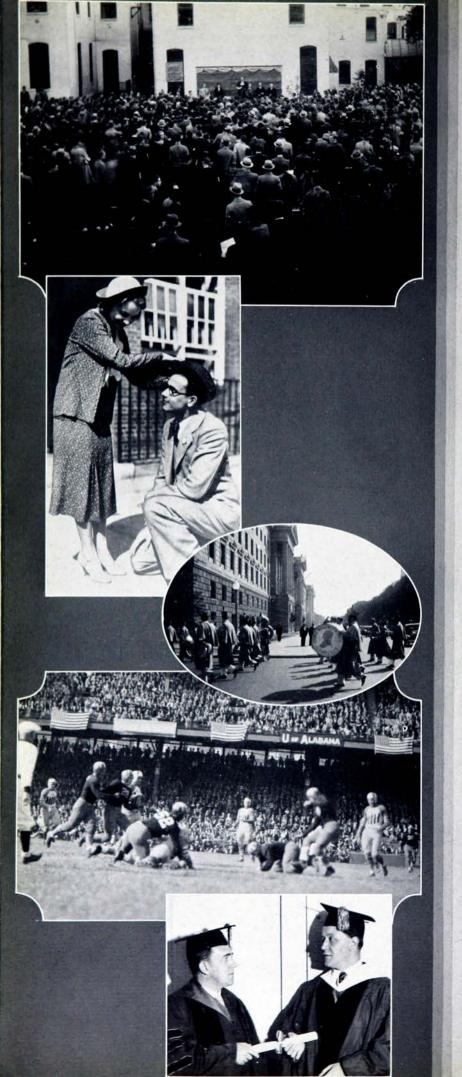

Lexington, Va., Sept. 24—When the George Washington Colonials and the Generals of Washington and Lee take the field this afternoon it will be the first encounter of the two schools for twenty-four years. George Washington won the last game, 38 to 6, in 1908 when the two played in Washington.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 24—With flags and banners reading "Beat George Washington" whipping in the breeze, the city took on the "big game" feeling here this morning. Everywhere talk of the merits of the two teams could be heard.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 24—A novel note in showmanship was offered here today as George Washington and Washington and Lee warmed up just before game time. A history of each of the schools was announced over the public address system and the "Spirit of '76" was portrayed in tableaux by three G. W. students.

Wilson Field, Lexington, Va., Sept. 24—George Washington today opened the 1932 football season by defeating Washington and Lee, 18-0, before 3,000 fans. The Colonials made fourteen first-downs to the Generals' four. Fenlon's field generalship and Kriemelmeyer's punting were outstanding.

Oct. 8—Four thousand students last evening attended an enthusiastic "Beat Alabama" pep rally in the College Yard following dismissal of classes by President Marvin. Oct. 14—Conferring the honorary degree of Doctor of Music upon Hans Kindler, leader of the National Symphony Orchestra, and 168 degrees in course, the University held its annual fall Convocation in Constitutional Hall last night. Oct. 21—In connection with the Hatchet political poll, the Speakers' Congress held a huge rally last night in Corcoran Hall, imitating a typical political gathering. Members of the organization impersonated the leading candidates and spoke on their respective platforms. Every candidate received an ovation as he approached the speaker's desk and the chairman had difficulty in keeping the delegates in their seats.

Nov. 16—Taking his place with a host of distinguished alumni, Richard Tilden, last night, proved himself the champion orator of the senior class in the Davis Prize Speaking Contest. Elizabeth Reeves and Seymour Mintz placed second and third. Nov. 21—Bitter rivalries will be fought out Stunt Night, when the freshmen vie with the sophomores, and the sorority girls with the fraternity men, for the Student Council awards to the best skits. To complete the program, Troubadours will present a scene, and genial Elmer Louis Kayser will weave the skits and the speeches together in his inimitable manner, Nov. 23—Nothing more serious than a few bruises and torn shirts resulted from the pushball contest between the frosh and sophomores this afternoon at the Mall in the first event on the home-coming program. Following the contest, in which the freshmen were victorious, the spectators returned to the University and attended a reception to the alumni by President Marvin.

Nov. 24—Sigma Chi was today judged the winner of the best decorated fraternity house contest, and Harriet Atwell, Virginia Hawkins, and Ruth Molyneaux, representing the junior class, presented an armful of yellow chrysanthemums to the captain of the Oklahoma team between halves.

Nov. 24—Exhibiting one of the best drilled bands ever seen in Washington, the eighty-five-piece unit of Oklahoma's colorful 350-piece band added a picturesque note to the gala program presented today in Griffith Stadium. Executing military maneuvers in a smart and snappy manner, the crimson and white clad Sooners made an impressive appearance as they marched down the field behind their struttin' drum major.

Nov. 25—Thanksgiving took on added meaning to the thousands of rooters at the G. W.-Oklahoma game yesterday when, at the end of the fourth quarter, the score stood a tie, 7-7. Two evenly matched teams played consistently fine football to a gallery of approximately 19,000 fans.

Can't You See?" but a week off, Denis Connell, coach and prominent Washington amateur player, today began polishing off the rough spots with rehearsals being held twice daily. Dec. 8—After receiving the professional criticism of Hal Le Roy, Ziegfeld star, yesterday, Christine Spignul, the dancing director, again put the chorines through their paces in the afternoon. She hopes to have the clever routines, intricate steps, and high kicking done in a thoroughly professional manner.

With all the stage presence of a trouper, Ruth was, all in one, beautiful, delectable and appealing.

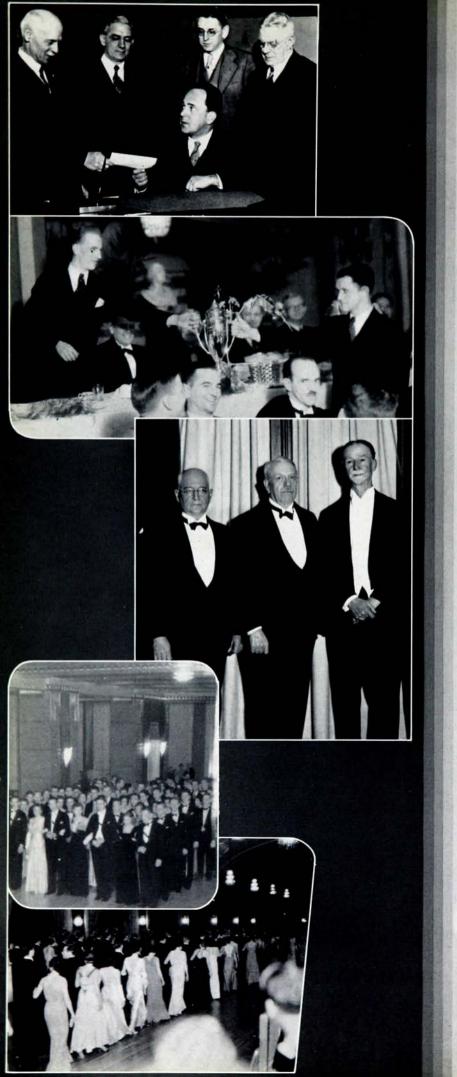

Dec. 15—One of the prize scenes, in the eighth annual production of the Troubadours last night was the court room scene with those prize comedians, Joe Danzansky and Jerry Sickler. Thinking they were actually members of nobility, their antics proved the hit of the evening.

December 16—Audrey Edmonds, playing the role of Julie, the wise-cracking chorine in "Oh, Say! Can't You See?", received a big hand last evening for her all-round vivacity, brightness, snap, and life. Dec. 17—Students, faculty, and dramatic critics alike united in praising Dan Beattie's lilting melodies following last night's most successful presentation of "Oh, Say! Can't You See?". The theme song, "Oh, Say! Can't You See?", was a decided hit and proved Dan's musical ability.

Dec. 18—Over 150 students contributed to the success of "Oh, Say! Can't You See?", the Troubadour musical comedy which closed a most successful four-night run at McKinley Auditorium last night. The specialities by Miriam Fisher on the xylophone, the whistling by Catherine Kramer, the terpsichore duet, Sock Kennedy and Marjorie Mitchell and the harmonizing trio added punch to the show.

Dec. 19—Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin today received a check for $7,000 from the officers of the National League of Masonic Clubs for the support of two chairs of foreign service in the School of Government. This was the sixth annual presentation of this amount. These funds are raised each year through the sale of cherry blossoms throughout the country.

Feb. 2—Three hundred couples danced to the strains of Jacques Renard and his band of music makers at the annual Interfraternity Prom last night at the Willard Hotel. A unique grand march, the Gate and Key pledging ceremony, announcement of awards, and the Razzberry added to the enjoyment of the evening, as did the specialties by members of the orchestra.

Mar. 5—The "Spirit of '76," as impersonated by three students of The George Washington University, and accompanied for the first time by two color bearers, led the University Band at the head of the fourth division in the inaugural parade yesterday.

Mar. 5—Represented officially for the first time in an inaugural parade, the University Band yesterday led the fourth division. Placed in one of the most favorable positions in the parade as leaders of the "Political and Civilian Division," the forty-nine musicians in their Buff and Blue uniforms made a most impressive sight as they marched up the Avenue.

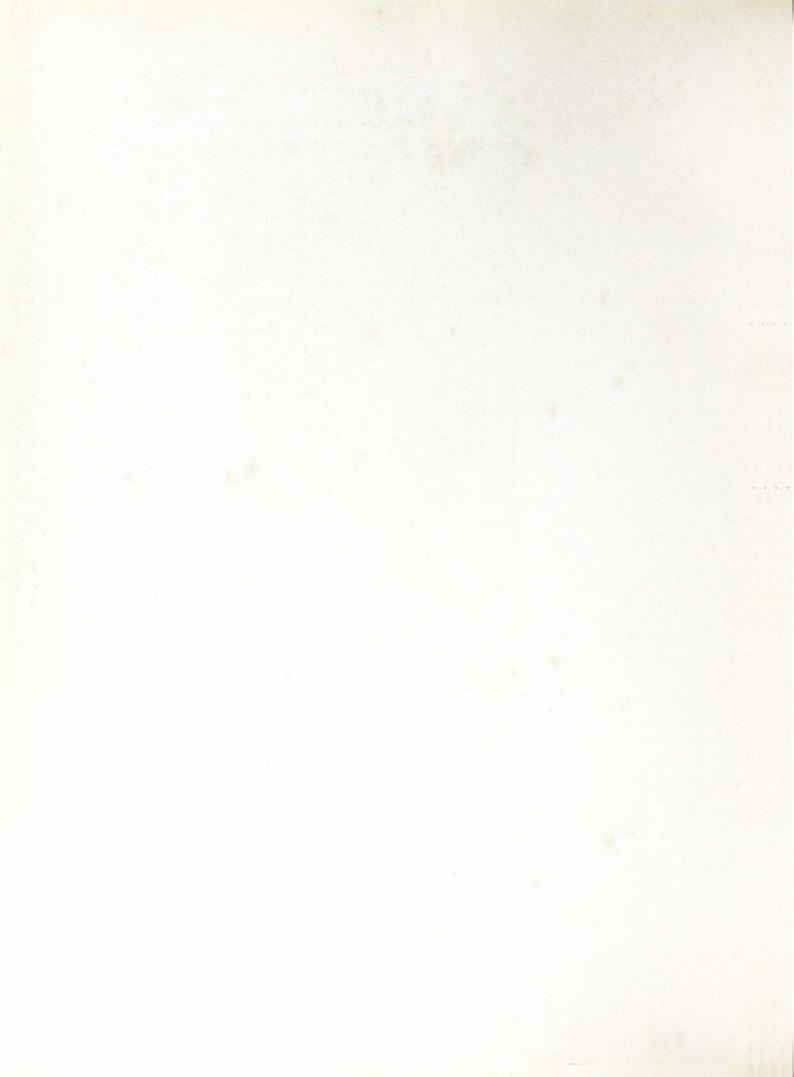

million dollars was received in 1928 from the Supreme Council, Scottish Rite Masons of the Southern Jurisdiction, for purposes of establishing the School of Government as a memorial to "George Washington, the Mason."

PERMITANTE DE LA CONTRACTOR DE LA CONTRA

JAMES EBENEZER PIXLEE

George Washington's rapid rise in the athletic world, which was brought to the public eye with a rush in the outstanding success of this year's football eleven, has focused the spotlight on the man behind it all. For four years he has labored with little recognition except from those with whom he came in direct contact. They had watched his struggles from the start. They had seen his quiet, unobtrusive work. They knew the man who neared the peak of his goal in the fine teams of the past two seasons in both basketball and football. In other words, they knew the James E. Pixlee who the sports writers have recently been introducing to the nation.

Mr. Pixlee came to George Washington in 1929 from Westminster College in Fulton, Missouri, where he had been located for eight years as director of athletics and head coach of football, basketball, baseball, and tennis. He coached football teams at Westminster which won the Missouri State Conference championship four times. His basketball squads won the conference title five times during this period and went undefeated for three years. In the two seasons of 1926 and 1927 the five teams under his direction, four of which he coached himself, were never defeated in collegiate competition. This is a fair sample of the success which he enjoyed before coming to George Washington. His entire career, which began in 1913 as coach of an independent club team in Portland, Oregon, has been filled with success only after an uphill fight.

THE COACHING STAFF

Max Farrington, assistant director of athletics and coach of the minor sports, played at Westminster College. In 1925 he was elected All-Missouri Conference Quarterback. Since his arrival at the University Mr. Farrington has been Mr. Pixlee's personal assistant in matters relative to the department.

Leonard P. Walsh, head varsity line coach, played football at the University of Minnesota in 1925, 1926, and 1927. He was named as a guard, in 1925, on Walter Eckersall's All-American team. Walsh came to George Washington in the fall of 1929, and has been a valuable member of the coaching staff.

Jean E. Sexton, freshman football coach, was fullback at Westminster College (Missouri) for four years. When he came to George Washington in 1929 with Mr. Pixlee, he took charge of the freshman team. Besides holding this position, he supervises intramural sports and is instructor in the Physical Education department.

Theodore "Ted" O'Leary entered the University of Kansas, where he played basketball for three years. He was captain of his team in 1931-1932, and was chosen as forward on the All-Big Six guint for the same year.

William Duncan, assistant freshman coach and scout, played halfback at Westminster College for four years, 1927-1930, working under Mr. Pixlee part of the time.

Marion Hale played football for George Washington as a tackle in the years 1930 and 1931. "Barney" is assistant freshman coach, helping Mr. Sexton with the line.

William H. Myers attended Westminster College and Occidental College (California) where he played football for three years. In 1929 and 1930 he was halfback on the All-California Conference eleven. Since 1931 he has assisted Mr. Pixlee with the backfield and has been an instructor in Physical Education.

John Lee, assistant football coach, played tackle on the University of Oklahoma team in 1928 and 1929 and was All-Big Six tackle each year.

THE MANAGERIAL SYSTEM

In the second year of its existence the managerial system proved to be highly practical and will continue to serve as a connecting medium between the student body and the athletic office. The system is based on class ratings of the managers; one senior is appointed who is in charge of all intercollegiate sports, while directly under the authority of the senior manager are three junior managers. One is assigned to varsity football, one to varsity basketball, and a third to the management of all minor sports on the athletic program.

Each junior manager is in turn in charge of a number of sophomore and freshman managers, who act as assistants to the varsity sports and managers of freshman activities. Appointments to the higher positions are based on the quality and length of service, as well as ability exhibited in the sophomore and freshman capacities.

John Taylor Vivian, who last year served as manager of varsity basketball, was appointed senior manager of the 1932-33 season. Three juniors were also appointed as managers of the three branches of activity. Bernard Fagelson, formerly manager of freshman football, was appointed manager of varsity football. John Everett, who had previously acted as sophomore manager of varsity basketball and manager of varsity golf, was assigned the post of varsity basketball manager during the past season. Robert P. Herzog, sophomore manager of varsity football and manager of varsity tennis in 1932, was appointed manager of all minor sports.

Four managers for the coming year have been announced. They are: Ray Coembes, as junior manager of varsity football in 1933; Sidney Margolis, sophomore manager of swimming; John Busick, sophomore manager of tennis; and Hal Thomas, sophomore manager of golf.

At the beginning of the second semester Gerald Free was appointed senior manager of athletics to fill the vacancy due to the resignation of John Vivian. Free was manager of varsity football in 1931, and had been an assistant under Hanback the previous years.

G. W. Sickler in action

Under the leadership of Jerry Sickler, who by this time has at least planned some constructive things for the cheer leaders, the boys who lead the students and fans in cheers got away to a good start. In fact, under Sickler they always get away with plenty of zip, but usually fall under the strain of such labor by the end of the third quarter.

But this year Coach Jim Pixlee almost spoiled Jerry's usual plans by turning out a real first-class eleven which drew the fans to Griffith Stadium in droves. In fact, there were so many people to be instructed and pleaded with and taunted into yells that the squad was increased to seven members. Archie Burgess, Sickler's right-hand man, again assumed his position as crooner of the bleachers and managed to draw groans and applause at the right time, although on many occasions the two could not be distinguished.

One spectacular triumph marked the grid season. During the William and Mary struggle rain turned the already mired field into a complete slush, and the fans deserted the open stands by the time the tenth drop pattered down on the field. But not Sickler & Co.! No, sir! Apparently held to their sense of duty by some unknown strength, these lads stuck to their guns and continued to turn out really respectable cheers midst the downpour.

This fine bit of work, along with the usual yell-provoking activities, brought some credit to the 1932-33 Sickler edition and promised some bright prospects for next year when Coach Pixlee hopes to pack in even larger crowds for the inimitable Jerry to work on. The one shadow on his career might be the continued silence at basketball games, but just give Jerry enough more experience and this problem may be taken care of. At any rate the 92,000 fans (A. P. figures) were quite convinced at the football games that George Washington had some bonafide cheers and some able leaders to draw them out.

This year's staff included: Gerald Sickler, Archie Burgess, Samuel Walker, Lowell Bradford, Joe Danzansky, Pug Hay, and Bourke Floyd.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

The varsity football season of 1932, from the viewpoint of popular interest as well as the capabilities of the team, was unquestionably the best George Washington University has ever had. Under the experienced guidance of James E. "Possum Jim" Pixlee, director of athletics, sports have taken a distinct turn, and in four short years the Colonials have risen from the columns of the unknown to a position of national prominence.

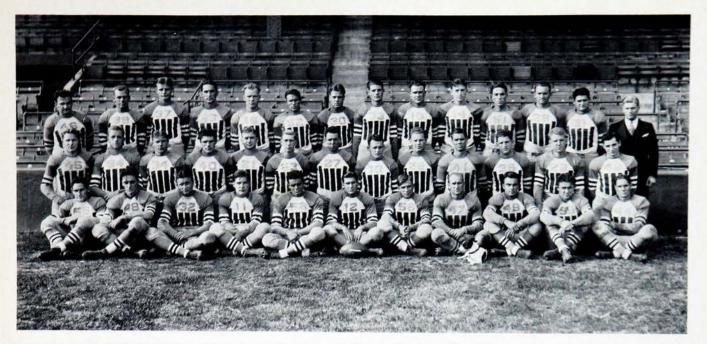

In seven home contests over 100,000 people filed through the turnstiles at Griffith Stadium to witness the best brand of football exhibited to Washington fans in years.

As far back as records can be found no Buff and Blue players have ever before been mentioned for All-American elevens. This year, however, four grid players gained these honors. John Fenlon, veteran of three campaigns and one of the cleverest backs that ever scrapped the turn in Griffith Stadium; Walter Slaird, tackle and answer to a coach's prayer for a dependable linesman; Kermit (ZuZu) Stewart, small but colorful guard, with ability to diagnose the most intricate enemy play; and Edward (Nig) McCarver, lightning sophomore back, gained this distinction.

We doff our hats in tribute to the ten seniors on the team. To these men a debt of gratitude is owed, for it was largely through their efforts that Colonial eleven rose from the ranks of mediocrity to top-notch football. Capt. Wayne Chambers, a pass-snagging end, who kept the enemy goal line constantly in sight; John Fenlon, scrappy back, who passed and ran the ball for many glorious victories; Bob Galloway, one of the best defensive ends on the coast; Wally Slaird, impenetrable iron man of the forward wall; Frank Blackistone, twice elected All-District center, and former Central High School star; and "Otts" Kriemelmeyer, a hard-plugging back as well as an exceptional punter, stand out among the graduates.

To these we must add: Fred Mulvey, who time after time brought down a long pass that turned defeat to victory; Joe Carter, halfback of unquestioned ability; Ras Nielsen, bulky but aggressive tackle; and Wally Wilson, determined veteran guard, who, like their teammates mentioned above, were responsible for the successes of the grid team.

Due to a broken collar bone, sustained during early pre-season training, Lee Carlin, sterling triple threat back in 1931, was forced to witness all of the 1932 games from the bench. In honor of his past demonstrated ability he was elected captain of the 1933 team at the annual football banquet.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 18; WASHINGTON AND LEE, 0

A surprisingly clean-cut victory over Washington and Lee on the latter's home field was the inspiration for a remarkable season. Early in the first quarter the Colonials captured a 12-0 lead, while the Generals were never able to get within 25 yards of the goal.

To open the game, W. and L. kicked off to Strayer, who returned the ball to his own 36-yard line; ground plays failed, and Kriemelmeyer punted on the fourth down to Henthorne, W. and L. safety man. Parrish recovered a fumble on the 40-yard strip. Fenlon and Kriemelmeyer hit the line for a first down, and after Fenlon went through for 19 yards, he passed to Fred Melvey over the goal line for the first score of the season. A few minutes later the Lexington boys missed their lone opportunity to score when Sawyer dashed 15 yards goalward before he was downed on the 25-yard line.

Johnny Fenlon returned this threat by shooting a bullet pass to Captain Chambers for a 29-yard gain, and then rounded his right tackle for a 34-yard advance to the goal. These two plays followed an exchange of punts in which the Buff and Blue gained 20 yards over their adversaries. In the second period the G. W.-ites failed to convert, but Finis Parrish dashed 55 yards for a marker early in the third canto. A pass conversion, Fenlon to Wray, failed to bear fruit when the Virginians staged a belated pass defense.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 24; WESTMINSTER, 0

The 1932 edition of the Colonial grid machine vanquished an inferior foe, Westminster, in their stride for the Alabama tilt the following week. In their first home appearance the team flashed sporadic brilliance, but frequent fumbles marred the exhibition.

Joe Carter, veteran halfback, made his season debut in the second stanza, and cavorted through the opponents for several long gains. After reaching the Westminster five-yard line, a fumble allowed the visitors to kick out of danger. Nig McCarver, sophomore speed king, entered the game and displayed as flashy a brand of ball as the local fans have witnessed. It was left, however, to Paul McKinnis, third-string Colonial back, to plunge for the largest gain percentage, in the latter part of the game. The scoring honors were divided between Carter, Fenlon, and Kriemelmeyer, the former making two touchdowns. As in the Washington and Lee game, again all attempts at the extra point failed.

ALABAMA, 28; GEORGE WASHINGTON, 6

Amid the color and clamor which is generally associated with the king of collegiate sports the Colonials opened their major home schedule against the renowned Crimson Tide of Alabama. Twenty-six thousand Washington fans thrilled at the spectacle that was presented to them. This, the largest crowd ever to have witnessed an intercollegiate contest in Washington, left with the feeling that the only difference between the two teams was John "Hurry" Cain, probably the Southerners' greatest star of all time, and the most highly publicized grid man that ever appeared in the Nation's Capital. That the high calibre of football exhibited by the Colonials was appreciated is attested to the record crowds that filled the stands during the remainder of the season.

The game was replete with all the thrills that could be crowded into one hour of playing time. The Tuscaloosans scored in every period of the contest; the lone Colonial marker came in the second quarter when "Nig" McCarver carried the ball over the three-yard line. "Hurry" Cain, captain of the Alabamians, led his team in every branch of play and scored all four of the touchdowns.

After the opening whistle sounded Cain and Chappell alternated the carrying assignment and advanced the ball to the three-yard line. Chappell moved it up two more yards and Cain crashed through for the tally. Holley converted this point and the three others that followed. After the kick-off the Buff and Blue team came back with a fury that seemed destined to net a marker, but an incomplete pass over the end zone broke the spree before maturity. Early in the second stanza a 19-yard pass ruled complete because of interference placed the pigskin in scoring position, and Cain went over on the next play.

An intercepted pass, a fumble, and a nice recovery furnished the break that netted the lone Washington mark. Fenlon, Stewart, and Doose were involved in the quick succession of plays. When it was all over, G. W. had the ball on the visitors' 14-yard stripe; a penalty and two line plunges placed the ball on the three-yard stripe, from which McCarver pushed over the line. The second half was all in favor of the South, marked only with an occasional pass by McCarver with the Tide scoring twice more.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 27: CATAWBA, 0

A weaker, less aggressive Carolina team took a sour defeat at the hands of a well-balanced and perfectly functioning ball club. McCarver's brilliance afoot produced the high spots of the game which lost all signs of interest when the locals rolled up a big lead.

The Colonial offensive was slow in getting started; but when McCarver entered the fray in the second period, things began to happen. McCarver passed to Mulvey near the end of the first half for the second touchdown after a brilliant running attack had netted the first marker. Johnny Baker converted the points after touchdowns with placements, breaking a streak of eight misses for the Colonials. McCarver scored again in the last half.

A beautiful punt from behind his own goal by Kirk Norton and the interception of an Indian pass resulted in a 107-yard gain for a touchdown. "Zuzu" Stewart broke the monotony of his colorful tackling and blocking by intercepting a pass and dashing 30 towards homeward. Cesareo starred for the visitors.

TULSA, 29; GEORGE WASHINGTON, 14

An inspired band of Colonial warriors journeyed to Tulsa to avenge two years of defeat, but a light, tricky, and clever Oiler aggregation soon squenched this desire. The Oklahomans accepted the slightest breaks with the agility of champions, and converted even the slightest opportunities into goals.

McCarver and Carter led the Colonal attack, but a rampage of fumbles deterred the chances of the Pixleemen. The Washingtonians outrushed and outpunted the Golden Hurricane, but a far-famed passing attack, mixed with the cleverness of the Tulsan jackrabbit backs, spelt doom. A powerful drive down the field led by McCarver culminated in a smash through left tackle for a touchdown.

Tulsa's first two touchdowns came as a direct result of fumbles by Carter and Kriemelmeyer. However, as the second period wore on the Colonials slowly gathered momentum and McCarver's score followed. "Sketter" Berry and Billy Boehm led the Westerners' attack. Doose and Carter revamped the game with a series of drives that netted the only other count. Blackistone's spectacular interception of an alien pass put the ball in position for the score that ended with a 12-yard run by Carter.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 21; IOWA, 6

Playing before fifteen thousand fans, a fighting Colonial aggregation lost no time in showing its power over a team that was rated much superior in pregame dope. The only Hawkeye score resulted from a spectacular run of 80 yards by Joe Laws.

The starting line-up boasted an all-Texan backfield of McCarver, Baker, Doose, and Parrish. McCarver led this crew in one of the most colorful exhibits of play that fans in Washington have witnessed in years. On their first successful goalward march the Colonial quarterback, John Baker, sent McCarver through his paces, and then a pass to Finis Parrish put the ball in dangerous territory. Baker and Doose came through with the yardage for a first down. After a few minutes of play, McCarver slid off right tackle for the first score.

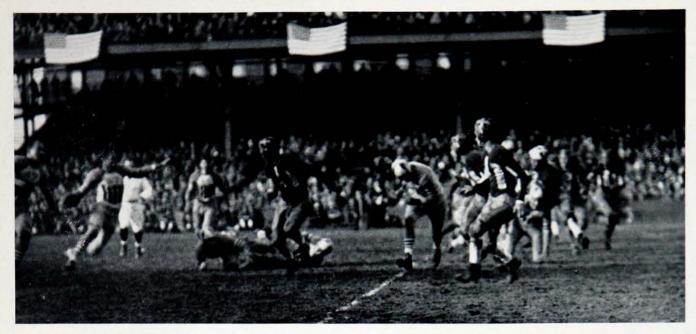

For thirty minutes the scoring was neglected in an exchange of yardage that favored the Colonials, but in the fourth period Fenlon, Galloway, and Baker entered into the drive that netted two more six-pointers.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 20; NORTH DAKOTA STATE, 0

A hitherto undefeated team, Coach Finnegan's North Dakotans, went down before the onslaught of a scrapping George Washington eleven, 20-0. Making it two in a row over intersectional rivals, Pixlee's charges were even more convincing than in their victory over Iowa the previous week.

The initial Colonial score came in the closing seconds of the first half after six consecutive drives had failed to push the ball over. McCarver slashed over on a short dash as the gun barked for the half. With this lead to work on, the Colonials began hammering at the Bison's line again. Following an exchange of punts, Hanson of North Dakota dashed 70 yards only to be called back for stepping out of bounds on the Colonials' 26-yard line.

Beginning the final period, the Colonial attack swung into its strongest power. Hardly had the ball been moved into position for play when the Bisons, aerials failing to gain, went into the punt formation. The punt was blocked and Chambers recovered. Fenlon made 13 yards and "Nig" McCarver crashed the remaining three for the touchdown. The Pixlee steam roller pushed over its last tally late in this period after the ball was lost to them on downs. From the North Dakota 33-yard line Fenlon, McCarver, and Baker smashed their way across for the score.

"Nig" McCarver starts on a long gain against Oklahoma Sooners with Stewart running interference.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 12: WILLIAM AND MARY, 6

With their playing field a sea of mud, the William and Mary Indians tasted defeat at the hands of a team that was fighting every inch of the way. Fifteen thousand fans braved the inclement weather to watch Coach Pixlee's fleet-footed backs gather up momentum in the first five minutes of play, and retain their lead until a "wringing-wet" timekeeper ended the fray.

A wet ball made kicking and passing very difficult. Visiting halfback Le-Croix got off a poor punt in the early stages of the game that gave the Colonials possession of the ball on the 43-yard line. Chris Doose and "Nig" McCarver led a terrific goalward drive that ended when the black-haired Texan crashed over for the mark. A placement for conversion failed.

In the third period a poor kick again put the ball in dangerous territory; this time Fenlon and Kriemelmeyer led the drive. An Indian penalty and a center rush by Fenlon added the margin of victory. Kirk Norton, kicking from behind his own goal line, gave the Virginians possession on the 34-yard line. Bergin cut down three of these, and then Worrell skirted his ends on a clever reverse for the lone Indian mark.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 7; OKLAHOMA, 7

A glamorous season of football ended as the Colonials fought a nip-and-tuck draw with the Oklahoma Sooners. Eighteen thousand fans, composed of students, 2,000 alumni, and thousands of friends watched Johnny Fenlon end his collegiate football career amid a blaze of glory; and a fighting, determined team made the first annual homecoming something to talk about.

Early in the second quarter, by the joint activities of Pearce, Chambers, Kriemelmeyer, and Fenlon, the ball was twice in a scoring position. The second time Fenlon returned a punt 21 yards, gained 25 yards on line attempts, and then Kriemelmeyer pounded his way over the last stripe for the lone score.

An intercepted pass, fumble, a few line plays and a pass from an all-American quarterback—Dunlap, to Fred Cherry, named by many for all-American end, netted the Sooners their tying score. The glory of two college bands, the inspiration of a crisp Thanksgiving afternoon, and the roars of enthusiastic rooters all accentuated the brilliance of the football that was displayed.

CHRIS DOOSE TOM DIKE BOYD HICKMAN

The freshman football team at George Washington this year did not play an auspicious schedule, but contented itself with providing the varsity with excellent competition in scrimmages. When Coach Jean Sexton began serious work in training at Camp Letts, his squad numbered twenty-five men. Among this group were fifteen men who had served as captains of their high school elevens.

As the season progressed, it became evident that the material on hand for this frosh team was the best in several years. The squad was labeled the equal of the fine team of 1929, which turned in the best record of any previous Cub eleven. The line averaged 195 pounds and the backs around 180, showing that Sexton and his assistant, Marion Hale, had a fair distribution of weight and a good average with which to work.

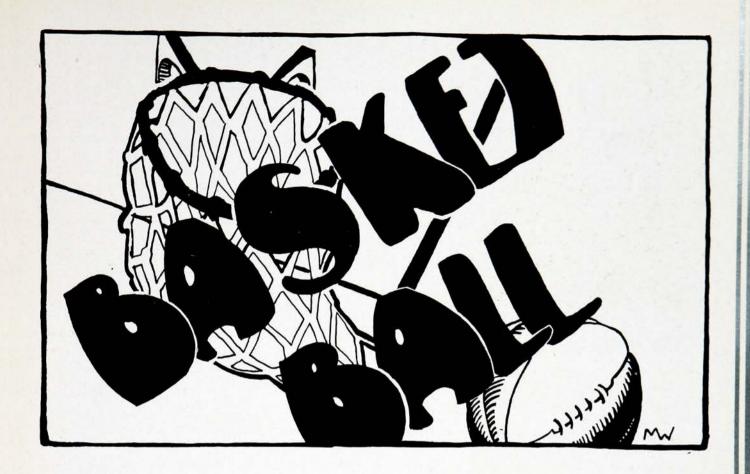

In the two games played, the freshmen won one and lost one for a percentage of .500 for the season. On November 5 the freshmen of Western Maryland triumphed over Sexton's charges at Westminster, Maryland, 13-6. Although George Washington took the lead early in the first quarter, the Terrors tied the count in the second round and went on in the third quarter to gain the lead and hold it for the rest of the game.

The other freshmen contest matched the Cubs against the "Radio Squad," or third string varsity eleven. In a field of rain and mud the frosh triumphed, 8-0, utilizing the aid of the elements to the best advantage. The first half found both teams fighting to take the ball in a sustained gain, but two determined lines and the weather conditions prevented any score.

If the value of a freshman squad is determined by the material it furnished the varsity, this year's team will rank among the first here. In Davenport, Bomba, Benefield, Kolker, 205-pound guard, Rathjen, outstanding in the line at center, and Deming, 240 tackle, Coach Sexton is passing to the varsity a group of men who would delight any coach's eye.

CAPT. ARTHUR ZAHN

VARSITY BASKETBALL

A sharpshooting quint and a clever coach, coupled with great spirit to win, were the reasons why Capt. Arthur "Otts" Zahn and his band of basketballers finished a hard schedule on the court with a record of 16 victories against but four losses. In the twenty games an average of 48 points was maintained. Coach Ted O'Leary, newly appointed basketball mentor, had a veteran quint to work with at the start of the season as well as several promising newcomers and moulded together a quint who was ideally capable of playing the fast breaking type of ball he employed.

The men making up the varsity at the beginning of the year included not only Captain Zahn at guard, but also Wayne Chambers at the other guard position: Tv Hertzler, center: Forrest Burgess and Wick Parrack, forwards.

Jimmy Howell, diminutive forward, replaced Parrack at the beginning of the second semester, due to the ineligibility of the giant Oklahoman, Bill Noonan, Bill Parrish, Ozie Wray, Johnny Fenlon, Lee Carlin, and Fred Mulvey alternated throughout the season with the regulars.

As usual, Shenandoah College furnished the opposition for the opening game of the season, being vanquished by the easy score of 54 to 28 in the Colonial gym. Burgess, Hertzler, and Parrack led the onslaught with a total of 41 points between them.

Two games played in the Tech High School gym proved disastrous to the fastmoving Colonials. In the first game a 33-30 loss was sustained at the hands of the University of Missouri; while the second was a thrilling, last-minute defeat at the hands of the Duke Blue Devils, 35-34. In both of these games the slipperyness of the composition floor was a great handicap to O'Leary's charges, whose type of play was seriously curbed.

The next game furnished a respite for the Buff and Blue courtmen in the form of the Baltimore University five. Although the varsity played but a short part of the game, G. W. ran up a 44 to 26 score, with the entire squad taking part in the slaughter.

After the Christmas holidays, North Carolina State was played in the G. W.

BURGESS

gym. A close, hard-fought game was the result, with O'Leary's men finally emerging the victor by a 34-29 score. Parrack led the scoring with 16 points from the floor. The visitors trailed 23-19 at half, but a determined rally in the second half closed the gap to five points.

Duquesne University trounced G. W. 52-32 in a game played in the Smoky City. The Night Riders flashed a brilliant passing attack, coupled with clever, close defense which completely bewildered the Colonials. Brenner, Duquesne guard, led the attack with 13 points, while Burgess and Parrack each scored 10 points.

George Washington made up for its loss to the Dukes by beating St. Johns of Annapolis 53 to 20 at the mid-city. The whole squad saw action, with Burgess leading the scoring with nine field goals for 18 points. Monk MacCartee, lanky Saint forward, showed best for his team with 11 markers. Three days later Wick Parrack went on a scoring rampage against Loyola in Baltimore, scoring 29 of the team's 55 points. Freddy Beltz, diminutive Loyola guard, scored 16 of his team's 41 points.

Keeping up the sharpshooting, in the next game with Quantico Marines, Parrack again led the 66-20 slaughter of the Leathernecks with 19 points. The close guarding by Zahn and Chambers prevented the Marines from running up any competitive score. Again in this tilt two teams were used by O'Leary.

HERTZLER

The feature game of the season was played in the G. W. gym against the great St. Johns of Brooklyn quint. After trailing during the entire game, the visitors put on a rally in the last minute of the game to tie the score and require an overtime period to decide the winner. With the tie score of 30-30, the New Yorkers immediately swished six points through the cords before G. W. could regain the ball. With little less than a minute remaining in the extra period, Captain Zahn scored a field goal and a foul shot, and Forrest Burgess tallied a field goal to make the score 35-36 in favor of the New Yorkers. The whistle sounded before any further scoring.

A return game with Quantico Marines proved more disastrous to the Bulldogs than did the former set-to, by losing 69 to 18. Due to Parrack's ineligibility, Jimmy Howell took his place and ably filled his shoes by leading the attack with 20 points.

Little Elon College went down before the highscoring G. W. machine 76-21, this score being the highest compiled by any district team in several years. Howell and Burgess led the scoring, with 36 points between them.

Taking revenge for beatings suffered for the last two years from Rider College, George Washington handed the New Jersey quint a 49-to-20 lacing, receiving little of the expected opposition. Ty Hertzler regained his lost form in this game by leading the scoring with 15 points.

Wake Forest College five offered more competition than was expected, succumbing only after a hard fight, 38-28. With the score tied 14-14 at half time, the Colonials opened the second twenty minutes with their much-publicized fast breaking attack to gain the ultimate verdict.

Another Metropolitan team was downed by the

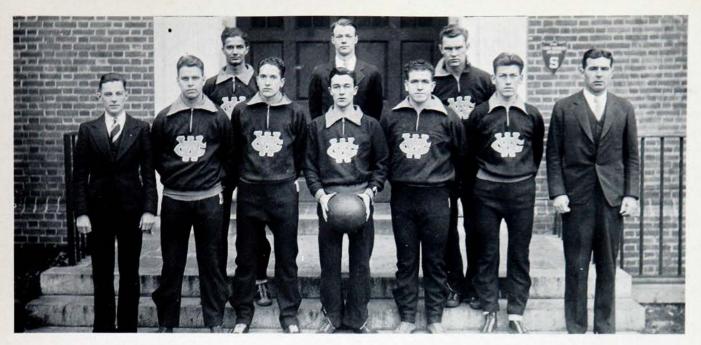

G. W. quint in the person of the Long Island University five. The entire squad took part in the 57-to-20 trouncing, with Burgess and Hertzler showing up especially good.

The Buff and Blue band managed to win over V. P. I. at Blacksburg, 43-40. A last half rally by the Virginians would have been disastrous for O'Leary's men had it not been for the clever shooting of Jimmy Howell.

Playing Loyola in a return encounter, G. W. again won 62-36. The victory was a sour one, however, since Captain Zahn sustained a broken nose in a collision with Vince Carlin, visiting forward. St. Johns of Annapolis was again beaten in the next game, 46 to 22. G. W. had little trouble from the visitors and took a commanding lead shortly before half time. MacCartee was the star of the Johnnies' attack.

By accepting an invitation to play in a charity tournament on George Washington's birthday in New York City, G. W. was picked to play the strongest team in the tourney in the City College of New York team. C. C. N. Y. led at half, 14-13, but after losing the lead following a long basket by Burgess, the Gotham quint gained a lead which they refused to relinquish despite a thrilling Colonial rally in the closing five minutes of the game. The game ended with G. W. on the short end of a 37-26 score.

The season ended with a 52 to 34 victory over the University of Delaware quint at Newark, Del. Howell and Burgess led the scoring. This game marked the end of college basketball careers for five of the squad members—Zahn, Burgess, Chambers, Fenlon, and Mulvey.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

One of the best freshman basketball teams in several seasons carried the colors of George Washington on the court this year. The quint completed the schedule with a record of 10 wins and 7 losses, being defeated only by the strongest high school teams in the District.

Although practice was not begun until late, Coach Len Walsh soon rounded his men into form. Among those to turn out were Barney Kane, from Eastern High School's championship five; Calvin Griffith, captain of his team at Staunton Military Academy; and Ed Alfaro, mainstay of his team in the interfraternity series. Troup, another freshman, also starred, holding down the center position.

From the start the frosh did well, and won their first three games easily, from Western, Roosevelt and Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. They ran into difficulties then, however, being soundly trounced by Central, the District High School champions, 70 to 19. In their next games, the squad tightened up and gave Tech and Central real tussles. After these games, the frosh hit its winning stride again and won four games in a row, against Washington and Lee, Gonzaga, Western, and a thriller from Tech, 42-41. The streak was ended by Gonzaga, but the cubs opened another winning streak of three games; these were won from Wilson Teachers College, Emerson, and Washington and Lee.

In the last three games with Bethesda-Chevy Chase and two with Eastern, the frosh faced stiff opposition and were on the short end of all three contests, losing to Bethesda, 35-33, and to Eastern, 54-34 and 52-30.

All in all, the team and Coach Walsh deserve much praise. They faced good stiff competition throughout the season and came through creditably. Besides this, several of the freshmen showed remarkable promise, and can be expected to add considerable strength to the varsity squad next year.

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON VARSITY CLUB

GALLOWAY, FENLON DEMING, PEARCE, Chairman

The George Washington Varsity Club, better known as the Varsity Club, was formed late in the fall of 1930, soon after the appointment of Mr. James E. Pixlee as Director of Athletics in the University.

Since the founding, the club has been moulded from a weak and powerless group into a comparatively strong, self-governing organization. The active membership has grown by leaps and bounds since the formation of the club. Under the constitution of the club, any winner of a letter in a varsity sport automatically becomes a member.

The real purpose of the club, if not the most important one, is to form a closer bond among the wearers of the Colonial monogram and to make towards greater unity among the members of the various varsity athletic teams, such as football and basketball. The means toward such an end, it is believed, can only be attained by the formation of such a group, so to speak, as the Varsity Club.

Officers of the club are elected by the popular vote of the members and serve for a period of one year. These officers form what is called the Club or House Committee and include a member from each of the classes represented. The chairman of this committee is President-Officio of the club and is elected by the four members of the committee. For the 1932-33 school year Hardy Pearce, Bob Galloway, Harry Deming, and Johnny Fenlon make up the committee, with Pearce as chairman and Galloway in charge of the treasury.

The club ventured into the social field during the year and sponsored two very successful dances; one staged shortly before the Christmas holidays and the other an Easter dance. Both affairs were held at the Varsity Club at 1609 K Street, N.W.

Third Rosw: Pearce, Mulvey, Hertzler, Steele, Vivian, Zahn, Burgess, Blackistone, Galloway, Wilson.

Football and basketball are the only major sports at George Washington. Consequently an introduction to minor sports would cover a wide variety of contests. Tennis, golf, swimming, and rifle lead the minor sports curriculum. Two of the sports, swimming and rifle, boast a varsity and a junior varsity or frosh team.

Under Frank Parsons, one of the foremost shots in the East, the varsity rifle team, which each year reaches the pinnacle in intercollegiate matches, had a season no less victorious than the past year. John Brightenburg and Frank Marano, captain and manager, respectively, have been in a large measure responsible for the success of the squad.

Last year, in order to have the eastern section of the National Intercollegiate Rifle Championship shot off in the G. W. range, a new lighting system was installed and the gallery was completely renovated, making it one of the best in the vicinity.

The tennis team, playing all of its home contests on the Columbia Country Club courts, had the most successful season of any of the minor teams scoring over high-calibre opponents with championship finesse. Max Farrington, assistant director of athletics, served as coach; and Robert Herzog acted as manager of the squad.

The golfers played their matches on several nearby courses. Captained by Dolph Atherton and managed by Johnny Everett, the team, though brandishing sporadic signs of cleverness and ability, was unable to defeat the teams of first water that they ran up against.

The most widely followed branch of the minor sport program is the swimming schedule. Al Lyman, prominent in local water "circles," is coach of the team. He is assisted by Max Rote, who is completing his second season as captain of the natators. Though from a standpoint of matches won and lost their record was not brilliant, the mermen garnered several new pool and District records for the Buff and Blue.

Late in the season, both Max Rote and Dyer Ghormley were entered in the National Intercollegiate Swimming Meet, held in the Yale pool at New Haven, Conn. Rote has not been defeated in either the 50 or 100-yard freestyle in three years of competition.

The team practiced in the Ambassador Hotel pool and was managed by Sidney Margolis.

VARSITY RIFLE

Facing one of the hardest jobs he has had since being appointed coach of the George Washington Rifle Team, Frank Parsons solved the problem of putting out a team of sharpshooters comparable with past Colonial riflers with possibly the best squad ever to represent the University.

Although the situation has been trying, a team of hard working and accurate shooters has been moulded around Capt. John Brightenburg, Dudley Aud, and Manager Frank Marano. In addition to these letter-winners from last year's varsity, Coach Parsons has uncovered sterling material in such men as Brylawski, Cross, Fletcher, Free, Landman, Neal, and Schmidt.

After competing in the National Individual Intercollegiate Championship, the Colonials started on their winning spree by downing the V. M. I. marksmen by a handy margin. Successive victories were scored against Maryland, V. P. I., V. M. I., and Georgetown. Against their annual nemesis, the U. S. Naval Academy, the Colonials surprised even themselves by handing the tars a five-point defeat—the first set-back Navy has suffered since 1928, when Coach Parsons' boys turned the trick.

By putting up such a marvelous showing in the face of many difficulties, and having risen to such dizzy heights, the undisputed champions of the District, Maryland, and Virginia as the Colonials are justly dubbed, they have certainly carried on where other great G. W. rifle teams have left off.

VARSITY SWIMMING

George Washington's varsity swimming team completed a disastrous season from the standpoint of victories, losing all but two of their meets, being tied in one of these. The tie was swum against Duke, 33-33, the last meet of the season, and the victory was scored over William and Mary, 37-29.

Johns Hopkins, Rider College, and the University of Delaware each eked out a 34-32 victory over the Colonial mermen in thrilling matches. In each meet the last-minute sprints of the visitors found Coach Lyman's swimmers lacking the necessary power. One bright spot in the Rider event was the record-breaking 100-yard sprint by Capt. Max Rote in 56 2-5 seconds, breaking every existing time for this distance in the District.

A trip to the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, saw the Buff and Blue again go down in defeat by the score of 37-29. Both Rote and Dyer Ghormley not only won their specialties against the Cavaliers, but also broke the Virginia record in the 50-yard free style and the 200-yard breast-stroke.

A return meet with Johns Hopkins in Baltimore was cancelled by the Jays. In the two remaining dual meets with William and Mary and Duke, G. W. won its first meet with Capt. Rote and Ghormley leading the attack. Duke, coming to Washington with a record of five straight wins, was tied by the local natators, 33-33. In the running of this event, five pool records were upset. Captain Rote set the new pace in 50 and 100-yard free style swims, and Dyer Ghormley went the 200-yard breast-stroke in record time. Carolina swimmers set a new record in back-stroke and 440-yard free style.

Several capable performers were uncovered by Coach Lyman in addition to the unbeatable Max Rote. Ghormley, breast-stroker; Vedder, sprinter; and John Hain, back-stroke, were outstanding throughout the season and will form the nucleus of next year's swimmers.

Max Rote, captain of the varsity swimmers, is one of the most outstanding athletes flying the Buff and Blue. Rote is holder of A. A. U. and District records in the 100-yard dash. He holds the record for the 50 and 100-yard events in the Ambassador Pool and the 120-yard championship in the Crystal Pool at Glen Echo.

TENNIS

A strong varsity tennis team furnished the needed strength in minor sports for the 1932 season by breaking even in their hard schedule with four victories and four losses. Max Farrington was the coach of the racqueteers, while Robert Herzog was the manager.

Goldsmith, Edwards, Gable, Lee, Robinson, L. Sherfy, R. Sherfy, and D. Bennett formed the nucleus around which a comparatively strong team opened the season with a 9-0 victory over St. Johns of Annapolis. Hampden-Sydney lost a close one to Farrington's charges, 5-4, while St. Johns of Brooklyn eked out a win by the same score.

The Colonials sustained their worst loss of the season when the Blue Devils of Duke University met and defeated them, 8-1, on the Columbia Country Club courts. Two losses in succession were chalked up against the Buff and Blue team by Pitt and Johns Hopkins, 7-2 and 6-3, respectively.

In a return match at Annapolis with St. Johns, an 8-1 trouncing was administered to the Saints. A similar victory over Temple ended the season for George Washington.

GOLF

The George Washington varsity golf team for 1932 could do little to stave off defeat in the four matches played, losing to all of its opponents in matches played on District links.

Being organized but a few days before its opening match with Boston College on the Indian Springs Golf Course, the Colonials showed their lack of practice, losing by a 5 to 1 count. Dolph Atherton, Bob Stearns, Jimmy Suter, and Bill Coleman, the last two named being medical school luminaries, furnished the competition for this match.

John Everett managed the pill-pushers.

A new face was in the losing line-up against William and Mary, Gene Thuney, who played number four against the Indians. This same foursome again took it on the chin from the golfers representing the University of Richmond, by the score of $13\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$.

Steadily showing more power as the season progressed, due no doubt to extra practice, the Colonials entered the match with the strong University of Pennsylvania golfers confident of putting up a better showing than they had previously been making. Buck Kendrick had by this time supplanted Thuney as number four and displayed some sterling golf on the wind-swept Columbia course, being the only G. W. man to defeat his opponent.

INTRAMURALS

With as pretentious an Intramural program as any university athletic department in this section of the country has attempted during the recent slashing of athletic budgets, George Washington students have enjoyed a wide variety of sports under the supervision of Jean Sexton.

Open competition in such sports as baseball, golf, tennis, ping-pong, and horseshoes drew the attention of approximately five hundred of the student body.

Teams representing Columbian, Junior, Pharmacy, Engineering, Pre-Medical, and Law Schools competed for the annual trophy given to the winner of the baseball series. Columbian College repeated their victory of the previous year by handily winning all of their scheduled games.

Craig McKee, long-hitting golfer from Law School, landed first place in the golf tourney after a close battle with Charles Kolb, on the East Potomac Golf Course.

A spirited elimination in the tennis singles tourney found Clyde Smith easily the class of the tournament. Again, in the doubles tourney, Smith paired with Everett Simon to win the final match with Bernie Jones and Tom Baldwin after a hard-fought battle. Without a doubt, the court sport proved to be the most popular among those interested in spring sports.

As soon as the ground was soft enough to allow pegs to be driven, the clang of horseshoes resounded from the courts laid off in the yard back of the Fine Arts Building. In competition with nearly thirty "barnyard golf" experts, Boyd Hickman emerged the best ringer of them all.

A new winter intramural sport was instituted by Sexton in the form of ping-pong. Although but one table was available for play in the gymnasium, it was in use constantly. In an elimination contest similar to the tennis tourney, Edwin Black, District of Columbia title-holder, trounced R. Sherfy in three sets for the championship.

Director Sexton is constantly on the alert for new ideas in intramurals, and doubtless will propagate another interesting program for this spring and summer.

MANAGERS

The complete women's sports managerial system is a comparatively recent innovation at the George Washington University and has met with more than gratifying success during its brief existence. Marked increase in the number of women out for sports has resulted from the operation of this system which efficiently contacts the major proportion of women students.

Each major and minor sport is under the management of a student appointed by the staff of the Physical Education Department for Women. She is chosen for her interest in the particular sport and for her general executive ability. This manager is assisted by four class managers who contact members of their own classes.

Sports managers for 1932-33 were Florence Hedges, hockey; Gretchen Feiker, soccer; Catherine Crane, basketball; Helen Mitchell, volley ball; Mary Louise Braselton, tennis; Virginia Dillman, golf; Inez Ingham, baseball; Helen Swick, archery; Ruth White, rifle; and Nancy Booth, swimming.

In addition to the managers for each sport, general sports managers are selected by each class. These women work in cooperation with the sports managers by holding general class meetings for the purpose of closer class organization and general instigation of interest in all sports. They also play an important part in organizing class teams for Sports Days and interclass tournaments. For the past season Helen Chafee acted as senior sports manager; Janet Young as junior; Gretchen Feiker as sophomore; and Marjorie Sehorn as freshman.

This entire system centers in the Executive Board of the Women's Athletic Association with both sports and general class managers automatically becoming members of the board on their appointment. Reports are made by each manager at the weekly meetings of the board and at the monthly meetings of the Association at large. As members of the Executive Board these managers also assist in the general work of the W. A. A.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Women's Athletic Association is the culmination of all phases of women's sports at the George Washington University. Under its control are found all major and minor sports, intramural sports, and all sports recreational clubs. Eligibility for membership may be acquired by participation in athletics to the extent of making a class team, or by becoming manager of one of the sports offered by the Physical Education Department for Women. In exceptional cases membership may be granted by vote of the Executive Board.

At the beginning of the school year the Association formulates its policies for the coming season, and these as well as the national aims of the organization become the responsibility of the Association under the guidance of the Executive Board.

This board is composed of the officers, the class representatives, the publicity manager, the Hatchet representative, the manager of Intramurals, and the sports managers. Its duties are to formulate and execute the rules under which the various sports are organized and run. The director of Physical Education for Women and the instructors composing her staff act as advisory members of the board.

The members of the Executive Board this year were Grace Haley, president; Edith Grosvenor, vice-president; Louise Cox, secretary; Mary Louise Yauch, corresponding secretary; Katherine Wassmann, assistant secretary; Dorothy Wilson, treasurer; Jane Hill, publicity manager; Harriet Atwell, Hatchet representative and manager of Intramurals; Bettie Elfelt, program chairman; Gretchen Feiker, ways and means chairman and sophomore class representative; Helen Chafee, senior representative; Janet Young, junior representative; Marjorie Sehorn, freshman representative; and the sports managers.

The three formal banquets, one at the end of each sports season, have been outstanding among the social events given by the W. A. A. this year. Major and minor letters, numerals, cups, and plaques were awarded on these occasions. A welcome party for freshmen women, a benefit bridge party, and a basketball sports day with Hood College and American University were other special events sponsored by the Association.

SOCCER

Soccer brought out a total of 122 players this season. Of this number there were 79 freshmen, 17 sophomores, 13 juniors, and 13 seniors. Margaret Blackistone, senior, Edith Grosvenor, junior, Kathleen Cummings, sophomore, and Alicia Mooney and Elizabeth Shelton, freshmen, were chosen managers for their respective teams.

On November 5 the G. W. Women's Athletic Association celebrated a sports day with Hood and Goucher Colleges at Hood. Since soccer is a new sport at these schools, G. W. took only one team, composed principally of members of last year's honorary varsity. An exhibition game was played with Hood, which had formed a team of women interested in making soccer a major sport at their college. The game was won by G. W. with a 3-1 count.

In the class tournament honors went to the sophomore team which won two games and tied one. The members of the winning team received their numerals at the fall sports banquet. The honorary varsity team was composed of players chosen by the coach, the manager of the sport, and the class managers. The team consisted of Mooney, Barton, Thompson, Stultz, Cummings, forwards; Doktor, Watson, Kuck, halfbacks; Tabinski, Felser, Blackistone, fullbacks; and Feiker, goal. Major letters went to Mooney, Doktor, Watson, and Tabinski; the remainder of the team receiving minor letters.

Coached by Miss Helen Lawrence, managed by Gretchen Feiker, soccer, which has been constantly winning the highest approval of the George Washington women, closed its 1932 season with the well-deserved comment, "a very successful year."

BASKETBALL

The universally popular sport of basketball finds G. W. women athletes no exception. During the 1932-33 season 15 seniors, 16 juniors, 19 sophomores, and 22 freshmen came out for class basketball in addition to the large numbers in the regular credit classes. Miss Helen Lawrence coached the teams while Catherine Crane filled the position of student manager. Assistant class managers were Dorothy Wilson, senior; Henrietta Hobson, junior; Reba Barton, sophomore; and Anna Koons, freshman.

Interclass games, coming as the culmination of weeks of training and practice, showed skill and true interest on the part of the women athletes. The contests were run off in three groups February 15 and 21, and March 1. Odd and even teams were picked from the best players on the four class teams; the odd team being composed of seniors and sophomores, the even of juniors and freshmen. The odd-even game was played on March 8, and the honorary varsity picked from the women demonstrating their basketball ability in that contest. Class numerals, major and minor letter awards were made at the W. A. A. winter banquet.

A special feature of the season was the Triangular Sports Day with Goucher College and American University February 11, run off in the McKinley High School gymnasium. Class teams from each school played half-games with the corresponding teams from the other groups. Results of these games showed seven victories out of eight games played for the George Washington teams, and a total of 102 points against 81 for Goucher and 23 for American.

First Row: Wilson, Cox, Haley, James, Chafee.
Second Row: Elfelt, Grosvenor, Hill, Tabinski, Wassmann, Braselton.

VOLLEY BALL

Although volley ball is the youngest child of the women's major athletics, it has proved itself to be one of the most popular winter sports ever introduced at the University. A total of approximately 150 women reported for practices, which were held in the "Tin Tabernacle Annex," the old church building on H Street.

Interest in volley ball originated in November, 1932, when Hood College invited George Washington University and Goucher College to participate in a Sports Day to be held on their campus. Among the events listed were volley ball matches between the three schools. With much haste and no experienced material or practice, G. W. rounded up a volley ball team under the direction of Inez Ingham. In the game G. W. was swamped by the more experienced teams to the tune of G. W. 26,

Hood 56; G. W. 18, Goucher 37. However, on the return home the students and faculty were so enthused over this sport that a book of rules, a net, and some balls were bought, and volley ball was offered to women as a major sport.

Miss Agnes Rodgers coached and Helen Mitchell was appointed manager of the sport. Margaret Blackistone, senior; Miriam Casteel, junior; Edith Spaulding, sophomore; and Dorothy Detwiler, freshman, were selected as managers of their respective class teams. An interclass tournament was run off during February and March, and the members of the winning class team awarded their numerals at the annual Winter Sports banquet of the Women's Athletic Association. Letter awards were also made to outstanding players at this time, the only major letter going to Elinore Grollman.

KOONS, BRILL, HUGHES, MCREYNOLDS, FRANCIS, SPAULDING, BOOTH

HOCKEY

The women's hockey season was more successful from the point of view of numbers participating this year than ever before. One hundred and twenty-three women played hockey during the fall and four full teams were entered in the interclass competition run off during the annual fall sports week. Results of this series of contests gave first place to the junior team with two wins and one tie, and one loss.

Hockey was a major feature of the Hood-Goucher-G. W. sports day at Hood College on November 5. Approximately eighty-five women from the University traveled to Frederick to participate in this event, and this number included four full teams of hockey.

Another interesting feature of the season was the Virginia-North Carolina Field Hockey Association tournament at Sweetbriar which was attended by a large group of hockey enthusiasts.

Recognition of excellent playing, in the form of major or minor letter awards, was given to Mary Lee Watkins, Louise Cox, Catherine Crane, Miriam Schmidt, Grace Haley, Francis Douglass, Helen Chafee, Bettie Elfelt, Mary Haley, and Marjorie Schorn. These players formed the honorary varsity team. Numerals were also awarded to the junior team as winners of the interclass tournament.

Credit for one of the most successful seasons in many years is due to the coach, Miss Agnes Rodgers, and the manager, Florence Hedges. Assistant managers for each class contributed no little amount to this success. These managers were Margaret Liebler, senior; Catherine Crane, junior; and Jane Hughes, sophomore.

SWIMMING

Swimming continues to be one of the most popular of the spring sports with University women. A large number of upperclass women as well as freshmen and sophomores participated in the regular classes offered four hours on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday each week during the season. These classes were divided into three groups, elementary, intermediate, and advanced, and met at the local Y. W. C. A. The sport was coached by Miss Agnes Rodgers, managed during the first semester by Edith Brookhart, and during the second semester by Nancy Booth.

During the spring sports week the annual interclass meet was run off. The contests featured 80 and 40-yard free-style, 40-yard back crawl and overarm, form swimming and diving, and a relay.

CRANE, DILLMAN, CRITTENDEN YOUNG, INGHAM

In 1932 the sophomore team won the meet with a score of 37½ points and the junior-senior team placed second with 29½. The silver cup awarded for individual high point scoring went to Inge Von Lewinski with 13 points. The honorary varsity was composed of Inge Von Lewinski, Priscilla Bunker, Betty Reynolds, Marjorie Crittenden, Louise Linkins, and Virginia Dillman. Major letter awards went to Von Lewinski and Bunker, while Reynolds, Crittenden, Linkins, and Dillman received minor letters.

Telegraphic meets with Swarthmore and other colleges were also featured during the season. The George Washington team made fine showings in these meets, proving their aquatic skill to rate with the best offered by their opponents.

During the winter "The Fins," the women's swimming club, offered natators an opportunity to indulge frequently in their favorite sport. Instruction, although not at all compulsory, was available at these meetings. The club met weekly at the Y. W. C. A. on Friday afternoons at 3:30 o'clock. A special night meeting on Tuesdays at 9 p. m. was also run for the benefit of night school students.

A particularly interesting feature in connection with the 1933 swimming season was the inauguration of a course in life saving under the instruction of Miss Agnes Rodgers. The course was offered once a week during the second semester at the Y. W. C. A. pool, and was open to all University women of average swimming ability. Through the instruction given in this course training for the Red Cross Life Saving examinations was available to the students participating.

During the two weeks preceding the beginning of the regular season on April 3, the required University swimming test was given to all new students and others who had not previously passed the requirements. The test consists of swimming the length of the Y. W. C. A. tank twice, entering the water head first, and the deep water test.

THE WOMEN'S

The George Washington University women's rifle team probably holds the best intercollegiate record of any team. During the past ten years only four matches out of a total of about one hundred and fifty have been lost; and the National Intercollegiate Team Championship was won by George Washington in 1927, 1928, 1929, and 1930. The Dot and Circle trophy cup was won by this team in 1927, 1928, 1929, and 1930, after which the match was discontinued. Second place in the National Intercollegiate Individual Championship match was won by Helen Taylor in 1929 and 1930, and by Caroline Seibert in 1932.

Each year rifle becomes more popular among the women of the University. About seventy women have been taking advantage of the fine facilities at George Washington for shooting, besides the varsity team. Five women, Lois Corea, Virginia Dillman, Evelyn Kerr, Naomi Myers, and Ruth White, members of last year's team, formed the nucleus of this year's team. Josephine Raysor, a former member, and Marguerite Thomas and Mary Louise Yauch, who learned to shoot at the University, complete the varsity team.

THOMAS, COREA, RAYSOR, MYERS, KERR, KING, YAUCH, DILLMAN.

RIFLE TEAM .

Helen Taylor Hanford, who has coached the team for the past three years, received her training under Dr. Walter R. Stokes, former Olympic champion and first coach of the G. W. team. While shooting under his guidance she was, for two years, captain of the G. W. team.

The matches of most importance in the early part of the season were the N. R. A. Intercollegiate Championship match and the shoulder-to-shoulder competition with Drexel Institute of Philadelphia. The latter was shot on the George Washington range, Saturday, February 25. The match resulted in a tie, the scores being 492 for both teams. The Drexel team thus proved stronger than in previous years, since usually G. W. has defeated them by a wide margin. The match was brought to a dramatic close when, with Drexel leading by three points, Evelyn Kerr, the last member of her team to fire, shot a perfect score of 100 points.

The team member making the highest score among the G. W. entrants in the National Intercollegiate Individual Championship was Naomi Myers, who totaled 590 points out of a possible 600.

The most outstanding events for the squad members this year were the individual match and the interclass match. The former was won by Dorothy Cattling with a score of 288 out of a possible 300. The Sophomore team, having a nine-point margin, placed first in the interclass match with a score of 1435. The winner of the individual match was awarded a gold medal, while the members of the winning team received numerals.

The members of the squad showing best tendencies for next year's team are Dorothy Cattling, Loraine Lincoln, Doris Ervin, Frances Thompson, Hortense Gifford, and Jane Ficklin. These girls are now being tried out in varsity matches.

TENNIS

Tennis continues to rank among the popular spring and fall sports for women, with all classes filled to capacity limit both seasons this year. With Miss Ruth Aubeck as instructor and Mary Louise Braselton as manager, the "raqueteers" rightfully claim a successful season for 1932-1933. Class managers were Katherine Wassman, senior; Virginia Dillman, junior; Frances Douglass, sophomore; and Marjorie Sehorn, freshman.

An interclass tournament was part of the annual Fall Sports Week, and the final results gave the title to the senior team, members of which received class numerals at the W. A. A. fall banquet.

The fall season also featured a doubles tournament open to all University women. Marion Butler and Ted Clarey, court veterans of long standing, claimed the cup awarded annually to the winners of this tournament. A similar singles tournament was run off during the spring season.

A tennis team of seven outstanding players represented G. W. in the Tri-College Sports Day at Hood in November. Final results showed a total of 45 points for G. W. against 25 for Goucher and 18 for Hood.

BASEBALL

In the spring a young girl's fancy usually leads her out of doors. And it happens that the fancy of many George Washington University co-eds is baseball. All during the spring the cries of "Batter up! Strike three! You're out!" could be heard on the Ellipse where the players reported for team practices.

Baseball was coached by Miss Agnes Rodgers and managed by Inez Ingham, a sisted by four class managers. Three class teams were entered in the interclass tournament run off during the Spring Sports Week. The class of '35 carried off the honors with two victories, no losses, and a total of 44 points to their opponents' 8. Gretchen Feiker captained this nine, members of which rec ived their numerals at the spring banquet.

From the best players on the various class teams an honorary varsity was chosen, composed of Gretchen Feiker, Margaret Blackistone, Reba Barton, Frances Thompson, Edith Grosvenor, Olga Loffgren, Mary Haley, Bessie Buchanan, and Grace Haley. Major letters were awarded to Gretchen Feiker, Grace Haley, Margaret Blackistone, and Edith Grosvenor.

MARION BUTLER, TED CLAREY

ARCHERY

Archery, one of the more picturesque sports, offers co-eds an opportunity to indulge in the pastime so closely connected with Robin Hood. It has found great favor, too, among those who do not care for the more strenuous sports. Thirty-five members were enrolled in the regular classes this year. Instruction was given by Miss Ruth Aubeck and classes were scheduled four times a week during the spring and fall. Helen Swick managed the sport during the past season and was assisted by Dorothea Adams.

As a part of the Fall Sports Week an individual tournament was run off. Helen Bunten was high point scorer in this contest and was awarded the silver cup for archery at the W. A. A. fall banquet. This cup was donated by the Women's Intramural board and will rotate to the winner of each individual tournament.

In the spring the G. W. archers participated in the Women's Intercollegiate Telegraphic Archery Tournament and ably demonstrated their skill with the bow and arrow. An interclass tournament was also run off as part of the Spring Sports Week.

VIRGINIA POPE

HELEN BUNTEN

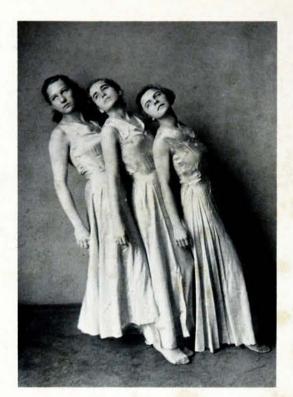

GOLF

Golf, although a fledgling among women's sports at George Washington, has by natural rights constantly gained in popularity during its two years existence. Approximately sixty women were enrolled in the two golf classes offered under the instruction of Miss Agnes Rodgers.

Aside from regular credit classes, a tournament at the East Potomac course under the direction of Virginia Dillman, manager of golf, was run off in the fall. Eleven entrants were listed and the contest was close. Virginia Pope, who won both the fall and spring tournaments in 1932, carried away first honors, while Nellie Mae Neff placed as runner-up.

In the spring two tournaments were scheduled, one similar to the fall contest. The second one was a novelty at G. W., all matches being played on the same day and handicaps given to all entrants.

Further recognition was given golf when the Women's Athletic Association presented a silver loving cup to be awarded in rotation to the winner of each tournament. Miss Pope was the first to receive the cup by virtue of winning the fall tournament.

ELFELT, CHAFEE, HALEY

RIDING

Riding, but recently offered to George Washington women as a sport to be taken for credit, is a popular two season sport, being presented in both the spring and fall. It is under the faculty direction of Miss Ruth Atwell and the student management of Virginia McDonnell.

Credit classes, offered twice a week during the spring and fall seasons, ride from the Washington Riding Academy accompanied by an expert riding master. Miss Atwell also rides with the classes.

The climax of the spring season is the annual riding show open to all University women. Contestants are judged on the following events: mounting and dismounting, trot, canter, singlefoot, riding in twos and fours, and jumping. Five points are awarded for first place, three for second, and one for third. Blue ribbons are awarded to each contestant placing first in an event, and a silver cup, donated by Columbian Women, goes to the winner of the entire show. Virginia McDonnell carried off first honors in the 1932 show and Margaret Cox placed a close second.

DANCING

Although the designation of dancing as a sport may be questionable, it is included in the Physical Education curriculum and has grown steadily in popularity among G. W. Sportswomen.

Miss Ruth Aub ck instructs the regular classes which include clog, folk, and rhythmic dancing. Rhythmic, based on free movement of the body, has proved the most popular and claims the largest registration of the three types. Each class studied a particular kind of composition and demonstrated its achievements at the annual dance recital in March. This year the Symphony Club assisted in the recital.

Much of the interest in rhythmic dancing centers in Orchesis. This group, under the presidency of Bettie Elfelt and the faculty direction of Miss Ruth Aubeck, meets weekly at the Ten O'Clock Club. Each year one or more large projects are worked out. During the past season Orchesis represented George Washington in the Symposium of the Dance given February 25 at Pierce Hall. Goucher, Hood, Fredericksburg Normal School, and the University of Maryland were some of the schools participating in this unique event.

INTRAMURALS

The Women's Intramural organization is now an established unit of the Physical Education Department for Women and of the Women's Athletic Association. Its fundamental purpose is to offer athletic activity to upperclassmen and to those women who would not otherwise come out for sports. Intramural tournaments are scheduled and run by a board consisting of a manager, appointed by the director of Women's Physical Education, and one representative from each group entering teams in the tournaments.

Any woman enrolled in the University having thirty or more completed credit hours is eligible for participation. Exceptions to this general rule are physical education majors and women holding major or minor letters, who are barred from all Intramural activity.

Ten points are awarded to the team winning first place in each tournament and five are given for second place. The team accruing the largest number of points during the year is awarded the Intramural cup and plaque at the W. A. A. spring banquet. The cup must be won three years in succession to be kept by the winner. Kappa Kappa Gamma has carried away the cup for two years.

The program for the past year included volley ball and ping pong for November and December; bowling for February; basketball for March; and tennis and horseshoes for April and May.

The board during 1932-33 was under the management of Harriet Atwell, with Helen Mitchell as secretary and Kathleen Cummings as treasurer.

HARRIET ATWELL

Thirteen organizations entered teams in Intramural contests during the past year, each one sending a large group to participate. Volley ball and horseshoes were innovations on the program and proved more than popular with co-eds. Bowling, a favorite sport of long standing, continued to draw out large numbers of spectators as well as players.

First Row: Fox, Grollman, Cummings, Atwell, Mitchell, Rose, Becker. Second Row: Palmer, Jones, Chaffetz, Spaulding, Burkhart, Young, Yauch.
